SS Recipients Gripe At Banks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Banking Committee has received a "flood of complaints" from senior citizens unhappy with a new program of depositing Social Security payments directly into bank accounts, Chairman Henry S. Reuss said Wednesday.

Reuss, D-Wis , urged Treasury Secretary William Simon to straighten out the problems.

Under the optional plan, Social Security recipients can have their checks deposited directly in their bank accounts rather than mailed to their home.

The idea was conceived as a way of speeding up payment, preventing loss or theft from mailboxes, cutting paperwork and waiting lines at banks, and reducing government handling costs.

"But the Treasury Department has failed to issue regulations spelling out the banks' obligations to Social Security recipients, and abuses have been numerous," said Reuss.

He said the committee in the last few weeks has received about 800 letters from elderly persons pointing out flaws in the program.

"Most complaints involve failure of the bank to notify citizens that their checks have been deposited so that money can be withdrawn from the account," related Reuss.

Others complained that it took repeated calls to the banks to find out whether their checks had been deposited. Some said personal checks bounced even after the banks had received the Social Security deposit to cover them. Others wrote that banks often failed to tell customers that no deposit slips would be issued.

One person wrote to say that a bank imposed a $1 service charge on customers telephoning to see if their Social Security check had been deposited.

According to the Federal Reserve, a midwestern bank delayed giving credit on Social Security checks until five days after the check had been received. "This gave the bank five days free use of the funds," said Reuss.

Reuss said some 4 5 million persons already participate in the direct deposit program, and the Treasury Department expects to enroll 6 million by the end of this year

However, Reuss said, the Treasury Department has not established regulations to protect the depositors.

"The banks should have been required to guarantee there would be no hassle and no delay" for Social Security recipients, said Reuss.

Reuss said the banks benefit by reduced operating costs, more deposits, free use of the money until it is withdrawn, and a chance to attract new customers

"In exchange," he said, "Treasury should require that banks assure prompt and efficient handling of Social Security checks." He said many banks apparently have stopped sending deposit slips simply to save postage

Gas Rate Increase Is Blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S Court of Appeals on Wednesday temporarily blocked a $1 5-billion-a-year natural gas rate increase authorized only the day before by the Federal Power Commission.

The court acted a few hours after a coalition of 16 petitioners challenged the FPC rate hike, asking the court to prevent collection of higher rates while the case is considered

The brief court order did not say whether the appeals court meant to accept the case for review

Issued by Judges Charles Fahy and Spottswood Robinson III, the order imposed a stay on the rate increase "until further order." The purpose of the immediate, but temporary, stay was "to afford this court an opportunity more fully to consider the matter," said the order, according to a court law clerk.

The petitioners, including consumer, labor and farm organizations, state officials and mayors, also said they were asking the FPC to reconsider Tuesday's rate decision. It doubles and triples the previous price ceiling on new natural gas supplies sold by producers to interstate pipelines.

The petitioners said it would take the FPC at least 60 days — probably longer — to review their request. Unless the court blocks the new price ceilings, the higher rates would cost consumers at least $367 million while an FPC review was underway, they said

They said there is virtually no chance that consumers could get a refund if the FPC or the courts eventually overturned the price increase

"This $367,004,833 represents the very minimum amount of excess profit that the interstate consumers of natural gas will be forced to pay the producers," the petition said.

The new ceiling prices went into effect Tuesday.

The petition urging the court to block the new rates claimed the rates eventually would be found illegal by the courts

They said the new rates are so close to unregulated intrastate gas prices that they amount to an FPC attempt to abandon, in practical terms, its legal responsibility to regulate interstate prices.

The petition was filed by:

The American Public Gas Association; Consumer Federation of America, New Jersey Board of Public Utility Commissioners; State of Minnesota, Minnesota Public Service Commission

Also, the United Steel Workers of America; United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW), International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA); American Public Power Association.

Also, the United States Conference of Mayors; National Farmers Union; National Farmers Organization; Energy Action Committee, Toward Utility Rate Normalization (TURN), and the Industrial Union Department of the AFL-CIO.

Making music together is the highest expression of love, a wise man once said, and the Bud Imig family, also billed as the Ding-a-Lings, and the about 300 senior citizens who joined in the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" Wednesday afternoon, showed lots of all's - right - with - the - world good will Imig, a Seward native, now works for Volunteers of America in Denver, a national Christian welfare agency that began as a splinter group to the Salvation Army.

Imig played a variety of instruments to taped background music — the melodica (similar to a harmonica, except it is fingered by a keyboard), the accordion and, what was probably the most unusual, the flexitone — an instrument of bendable metal, sounding similar to the musical saw.

But what brought people in the audience to their feet, applauding, was Imig, his wife Patti and children Casi and Bret performing such tunes as "Alley Cat" using a variety of bells: cow bells, German hand bells, Swiss bells

Imig said he and his wife collected and tuned the bells themselves to keep the bellringing tradition — an important part of chautauqua — alive.

The Gateway concert was sponsored through the City Parks and Recreation Department. Imig, who was the first director of the department's senior citizen's program, was vacationing in Seward and agreed to come to Lincoln for the concert.

Planners Refuse Rubber Stamp

The City-County Planning Commission mapped out an ambitious long-range street planning program Wednesday which may be short-lived.

But the plan unanimously adopted by the planners proves at least one thing The commission is not a rubber stamp of the City Council and County Board, which adopted a different street plan earlier this week.

On Monday, the council, County Board and mayor adopted a traffic plan which calls for a moderate amount of street widening and new roads during the next 25 years.

The plan adopted Wednesday by the planning commission calls for more widening and construction projects.

That plan, dubbed "6A" in traffic planning lingo, may go the way of the Northeast Radial — down the tubes. Even though the commission is responsible for updating the Comprehensive Plan, the elected officials may scratch the planners' recommendations and tell consultants to use their traffic plan instead, called "3B."

The commission's action culminated more than a year of effort by officials and citizens working to update the city and county Comprehensive Plan. The transportation study is an integral part of that plan, considered a blueprint for future planning in the community.

Planning Commission Chairman George Williamson told a packed room full of citizens concerned with various street projects that the decision the commission made was final.

"The buck stops here," he said.

The recommended street plan — with a few revisions — will be sent to Chicago consultants Barton-Aschman Associates Thursday to be used in updating the land use plan, he said. Williamson said the schedule calls for the elected officials to review the land use plan, matched to the transportation plan, sometime in November.

However, several City Council members have indicated they may try to stop that process because the commission agreed to a different traffic plan.

The commission's plan initially was recommended by the Technical Committee, a group of transportation planners and technicians.

Plan 6A calls for construction of the West Bypass that cuts through Wilderness Park and a segment of the Northeast Radial which has been in limbo since the City Council shut off the money two years ago

It also calls for the blocking off of 16th and 17th St. from Holdrege to R so the University of Nebraska campus would not be divided. Instead, 21st and 22nd would be converted into a one-way pair from K and L to Holdrege.

The plan also called for J and Randolph St. to be made into a one-way pair, a suggestion rejected by the planning commission Wednesday.

Under Plan 6A, 84th St. and Old Cheney Rd. would be widened to four lanes even though a number of residents told the commission they opposed that move.

A major reason people don't want 84th widened, the commission was told Wednesday, was because people believe the number of trucks using 84th St. would increase.

The commission agreed that another street farther east should be designated as a major truck route and asked city and county officials to draft a truck route plan for the urbanized area. Elected officials also have asked that such a study be undertaken

Plan 6A also calls for the widening of a portion of Normal Blvd , 70th St. from A to Hwy. 2, Hwy. 2 from Pioneers Blvd east, N.W. 48th, a section of Pine Lake Rd., Superior St. and Cornhusker Hwy. and a portion of Hwy. 6 from 70th east to near Waverly.

Plan 3B, approved by the elected officials, calls for many of the same street projects, including the widening of 84th St., Normal Blvd. and Old Cheney Rd

Ranch At Crawford Struck By Tornado

By The Associated Press

A tornado touched down at a ranch 18 miles north of Crawford Wednesday night, causing property damage but no injuries.

Authorities said the tornado touched down at the Bernard Norman ranch where it destroyed a pickup and a farm truck, removed the chimney from the Norman home and destroyed most of the trees surrounding the home. But there were no injuries to the Norman family which had sought shelter in the basement.

There were four confirmed sightings of a tornado in the Chadron area. Sightings were reported from 8:30 p.m. CDT.

A tornado spotted on the west edge of Chadron touched down, according to the weather service. The National Weather Service at Scottsbluff reported the tornado on the ground. But, at about 9:33, the agency reported the funnel had lifted up and was just over Chadron.

The weather service had issued tornado warnings for Dawes and northern Sheridan Counties in the Nebraska Panhandle shortly after the sighting of the tornado by the public 15 miles west of Chadron.

It later extended the warnings until 12 p.m. CDT for Dawes County after the Chadron Police Department reported sighting a funnel cloud 13 miles south-southeast of Chadron.

Radio station KCSR, which normally signs off at dusk, remained on the air to broadcast the alerts.

Legislators, Executive Branch Debate Implementation Of Laws

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Spokesmen for Nebraska's legislative and executive branches of government went to war Wednesday over a crucial constitutional question:

Do executive officials have the authority to refuse to implement legislative enactments if they believe them to be unconstitutional?

Yes, said Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas and William Hoppner, Gov. J. James Exon's assistant.

No, said a number of senators who sit on the Legislative Council's executive board.

At issue is executive branch refusal to implement two 1976 legislative enactments which the Department of Justice believes are unconstitutional.

They include the new medical malpractice law and an $8,000 appropriation to the Department of Education to reimburse the Ponca School District for the education of wards of the court from outside that district.

Senators maintain that those enactments are the law and must be implemented by the executive branch until or unless they are successfully challenged in the courts.

"They are the laws until the courts say they're not," Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue suggested to the board.

"There is no authority in the law for an administrator to refuse to implement laws based on what he believes the constitution may say," Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha said.

"Where is the power not to implement the mandate of the Legislature?" Cavanaugh asked Douglas.

"A law is a law until it is proved unconstitutional," Sen. John Savage of Omaha declared.

But Douglas disagreed, suggesting that executive officers have a responsibility to keep their oaths to uphold the constitution.

If they have reason to believe that a legislative enactment is unconstitutional, they are not required to implement it, Douglas said.

As for himself, the attorney general said, he may represent the Legislature as its legal counsel, but "my duty primarily lies with upholding the constitution."

Hoppner said executive officers have a right to "make judgments as to whether the Legislature exceeded its authority" and adopted an unconstitutional act.

Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City, who took the issue to the executive board, talked about impeaching executive officials who refuse to implement the law.

After a couple hours of discussion, the board decided to direct its chairman, Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, to discuss with a private attorney what course of action the Legislature might take to require implementation of the suspended laws.

Lewis had proposed such a course, suggesting that the Legislature go to court, if necessary, to resolve the issue.

Cavanaugh told Douglas he believes the attorney general should file suit to challenge any law which he believes is unconstitutional.

A law is not unconstitutional because of any attorney general's opinion, Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said.

Mississippi GOP Chief Backs Ford

By The Associated Press

The first major backlash to Ronald Reagan's choice of a liberal vice presidential candidate came Wednesday when the influential chairman of Mississippi's Republican party endorsed President Ford for the Republican nomination.

The endorsement, by Clarke Reed, goes a long way towards insuring Ford the support of the Mississippi delegation Reed will lead to Kansas City. Mississippi has 30 uncommitted votes, the largest bloc of such delegates available in the tight race for the GOP nomination.

Elsewhere, the question of "Madame Vice President" was raised and Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter received a top secret full-scale intelligence briefing from CIA Director George Bush.

On Monday, Reagan named Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, who has a liberal voting record, as his choice for the GOP vice presidential nomination should he win the nomination.

Earlier Wednesday, Ford aides in Mississippi predicted the President would get a majority of the 30 votes, but said it would not come before Ford's visit to the state Friday and probably not before the GOP convention. Reagan's Mississippi staff announced that Reagan and Schweiker would also come to the state next week.

Reed said in his statement that he had been "leaning to Gov. Reagan." But in switching to Ford, he said:

"I arrived at my decision after Gov. Reagan announced his selection of a running mate with a philosophy opposite to his own and well to the left of the American mainstream. I believe having this kind of vice president is too big a price to pay for the nomination."

At his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch, Reagan said, "I was disappointed that Clarke won't keep his longtime personal commitment."

Reed said he would vote for Ford when the state delegation caucuses in Kansas City, but that he would not pressure other delegates to follow his lead.

Carter, meanwhile, was meeting with Bush for what the CIA director called a very thorough briefing that lasted more than 5½ hours and went into "a great deal of detail."

"I don't think we ever got a question that we couldn't answer," Bush said before two Army helicopters lifted the CIA party off the grass strip that serves as the Plains airport.

Earlier, Carter held a news conference and blamed the Nixon and Ford administrations for giving the nation an economic headache by using deliberately planned recessions to fight inflation.

Carter outlined economic goals of a Carter administration and said he would be able to deal with the problem of stabilizing the inflation rate while lowering the unemployment rate by "targeting" job creation.

Midwest Governors Like The Money, Not The Strings

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Midwestern governors wound up their annual conference Wednesday after agreeing they want more money and less meddling from Washington.

"We (midwestern states) are on the short end of the stick in terms of our relations with the federal government," Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey told the chief executives.

"I know that in the Midwest, we sort of scorn federal handouts — even when they came along in the 1950s with the Interstate highway system," he said. "The very idea that federal dollars are tainted and we ought to pride ourselves in foregoing federal handouts still may make nice oratory at election time, but the fact is that unless you get it from the federal government, you have to get it from the taxpayer."

The governors approved without debate a resolution offered by Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen that the federal government reexamine its formula for spending in the states.

North Dakota Gov. Arthur A. Link was the lone dissenter to a resolution offered by Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon that asked the Environmental Protection Agency to allow some discharges of warm water by power plants into streams. Link said the resolution was too broad.

Two resolutions on agriculture held over from Tuesday were approved without debate.

The resolutions asked "that the federal government refrain from intervention in the farm economy through the use of the embargo of agricultural exports" and for "revision of the 1964 Meat Imports Law and limitation of imports that are produced under subsidy."

Gov. Robert F. Bennett of Kansas said the reworked resolutions had been "made so bland we can all vote for them.

"Which is sort of like the rest of the mountain of paper we cover at this conference, that no one ever reads — except our staffs and us just before we vote on it."

The governors turned down a staff proposal to hire a fulltime energy coordinator.

Chairman Richard F. Kneip of South Dakota turned the conference over to Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond who will chair the 1977 meeting at Checotah, Okla.

Bond, at 36 the youngest governor to chair the conference, said the next meeting would concern itself with fewer resolutions and more discussion on mutual problems.

Guess Who Ran Up 943 Tickets

Anthony Kreiser AP

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — The biggest scofflaw case in the history of Traffic Court here has been settled with an agreement by a former policeman to pay $13,500 for 269 parking tickets.

The city claimed that the former policeman — Anthony Kreiser — actually was responsible for 943 tickets, but dropped presecution on most of them in pretrial negotiations that resulted in the settlement.

Kreiser could have wound up owing $235,000 in fines had he gone to trial on each ticket and lost.

His lawyer had tried that tactic in a series of trials that began last week, and by Monday Kresier had lost 23 of 25 trials. Judge John A. McCollom had assessed the maximum fine of $200 plus $50 court costs in each of those cases for a total assessment of $5,750. That total was vacated when the $13,500 settlement was reached.

Kreiser, 34, became a policeman in 1966 and was fired July 2, 1973, on four charges sustained in a hearing before the Police Board. One of the charges was that he failed to register and license his car properly.

Judge McCollom said: "Mr. Kreiser now has the dubious distinction of having the largest number of tickets against him ever in this court. You bring discredit upon yourself, you bring discredit upon the city and uniform you wore."

Afterward, Kreiser refused to speak to reporters except to maintain his innocence. Levin said that despite the plea, Kreiser maintained he didn't own the cars involved and he wasn't the driver.

Ronald J.P. Banks, chief of the scofflaw unit of the city attorney's office, said Kreiser was caught because he claimed ownership of one of the cars involved in obtaining settlement from an insurance company in an accident claim.

Apparently Kreiser was reluctant to plead guilty because of efforts to appeal his firing, fearing a guilty plea would work against him.

Under terms of the settlement, Kreiser forfeited $1,150 in bonds and is to pay $1,000 Aug. 6, another $1,350 on Sept. 1 and thereafter $275 a month until the fines are paid.

U.S. Economic Recovery Takes A Pause

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite healthy earnings in the auto and oil industries, the rapid comeback in the U.S. economy may be slowing for a while.

The pause in the recovery, not unusual for the nation's trillion-dollar economy, has developed because the spring surge in consumer spending has flattened out before an expected takeoff in capital spending, the business purchases of plant and equipment expected to power the recovery in its later phase.

The government's June index of 12 leading economic indicators, released Wednesday and designed to forecast the economy's growth rate, showed a .3 per cent increase over May compared with a .7 per cent increase in May over April.

The government pegged June's advance to estimates of this higher capital spending of factories and new machines.

The June figures probably will be revised later this month, because half of the 12 indicators in the preliminary report are estimated on less-than-complete data and one is missing until the middle of the month.

In fact, the Commerce Department, which puts the index together, said the June gain stemmed from a surge in one of its estimates, the monthly new contracts and orders for plant and equipjent.

The revision could make the government's indicator swing drastically. For example, last month, the Commerce Department revised downward the May advance over April to .7 per cent from 1.4 per cent. Without the revision, the June index would show a decline from May.

The slowdown in the recovery is reflected in the earnings of major corporations, with profits for manufacturers of consumer goods rising while earnings of capital goods producers lag behind last year's levels.

Consumer spending on automobiles and energy consumption, some of the strongest forces in the economy this spring, pushed auto companies' second quarter profits to record levels and oil company profits generally to higher levels.

General Motors Corp.'s second quarter profits increased almost threefold to $909 million, the most ever by an industrial corporation. GM's profits were $333 million in the comparable year-earlier quarter.

Chrysler Corp., which lost a record $260 million last year, reported its profits in the second quarter soared to $155.1 million, highest in the firm's history.

The GM performance topped the $862 million earned in the last three months of 1974 by Exxon Corp.

Mobil Oil Corp., the nation's No. 3 oil company, reported Wednesday a 9 per cent increase in its second quarter earnings to $214 million, and Standard Oil Co. of California, No. 4 among the U.S. oil companies, posted a 9.5 per cent second quarter increase to $206 million.

But steel companies, which relay on capital spending as well as demand from Detroit, showed mixed second quarter results. Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second biggest steel company, said its earnings rose 9 per cent in the last three months to $54.4 million, compared with the 7 per cent drop reported by U.S. Steel Corp.

Another sign of the economy's pause was the lowering of the prime rate to 7 per cent from 7¼ per cent by two major New York banks, Morgan Guaranty Bank and the Bank of New York.

The decline in the prime rate, the rate banks charge on loans to their best corporate customers, follows two weeks of slowing loan demand by businesses, according to Federal Reserve figures.

Some critics of the economy's performance say high interest rates keep businesses from borrowing the money to get a surge in capital spending under way.

"Many of us feel that interest rates still are historically high, especially for 7.5 per cent unemployment," said one New York economist.

TWA Attendants To Vote On Contract

By The Associated Press

The union representing the 1,500 flight attendants of Trans World Airlines announced Wednesday night that it had withdrawn a Sunday strike deadline and would hold a ratification vote on a previously rejected contract offer.

In California, striking cannery workers prepared to vote on a proposed new contract. And a wildcat strike which has idled more than a third of the nation's 150,000 coal miners continued to spread through the Appalachian coal fields.

Earlier Wednesday, a tentative contract settlement was reached by Western Union Telegraph Co. and the United Telegraph Workers.

TWA had said earlier Wednesday it was prepared to go to court to force a vote on its final contract offer and to head off the threatened strike. A union spokesman in New York said by holding the mail ratification vote, long delays in the courts would be avoided.

The flight attendants' union, Local 1973 of the Transport Workers Union, AFL-CIO, previously rejected the TWA contract offer June 18 when it was complete except for two articles on work rules.

A flight attendants' strike had been threatened off and on since June. The proposed contract calls for an increase in wages and benefits of about 30 per cent over three years retroactive to last July 31.

The third-year level of the proposal calls for salaries of $1,240 a month for flight attendants for domestic service and slightly higher for overseas flights to Europe and the Near East.

Western Union and the UTW said their tentative new three-year contract would increase wages and benefits for 8,000 UTW members by 25.6 per cent.

But at the same time, the Communications Workers of America, representing 1,000 Western Union employes in the New York City area, rejected a company offer and set a strike vote for Thursday.

Fruits and vegetables sat rotting in California fields Wednesday while growers waited for striking cannery workers to vote on a tentative contract agreement.

Frank Joseph, business representative for Local 679 of the Teamsters Cannery Workers, said most of the 30,000 striking workers will vote on ratification Friday and it is unlikely that much canning will take place before Monday.

Little progress was reported in Washington in the second day of intensive efforts to break an impasse in the 14-week-old United Rubber Workers strike.

Mississippi GOP Chief Backs Ford

By The Associated Press

The first major backlash to Ronald Reagan's choice of a liberal vice presidential candidate came Wednesday when the influential chairman of Mississippi's Republican party endorsed President Ford for the Republican nomination.

The endorsement, by Clarke Reed, goes a long way towards insuring Ford the support of the Mississippi delegation Reed will lead to Kansas City. Mississippi has 30 uncommitted votes, the largest bloc of such delegates available in the tight race for the GOP nomination.

Elsewhere, the question of "Madame Vice President" was raised and Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter received a top secret full-scale intelligence briefing from CIA Director George Bush.

On Monday, Reagan named Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, who has a liberal voting record, as his choice for the GOP vice presidential nomination should he win the nomination.

Earlier Wednesday, Ford aides in Mississippi predicted the President would get a majority of the 30 votes, but said it would not come before Ford's visit to the state Friday and probably not before the GOP convention. Reagan's Mississippi staff announced that Reagan and Schweiker would also come to the state next week.

Reed said in his statement that he had been "leaning to Gov. Reagan." But in switching to Ford, he said:

"I arrived at my decision after Gov. Reagan announced his selection of a running mate with a philosophy opposite to his own and well to the left of the American mainstream. I believe having this kind of vice president is too big a price to pay for the nomination."

At his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch, Reagan said, "I was disappointed that Clarke won't keep his longtime personal commitment."

Reed said he would vote for Ford when the state delegation caucuses in Kansas City, but that he would not pressure other delegates to follow his lead.

Carter, meanwhile, was meeting with Bush for what the CIA director called a very thorough briefing that lasted more than 5½ hours and went into "a great deal of detail."

"I don't think we ever got a question that we couldn't answer," Bush said before two Army helicopters lifted the CIA party off the grass strip that serves as the Plains airport.

Earlier, Carter held a news conference and blamed the Nixon and Ford administrations for giving the nation an economic headache by using deliberately planned recessions to fight inflation.

Carter outlined economic goals of a Carter administration and said he would be able to deal with the problem of stabilizing the inflation rate while lowering the unemployment rate by "targeting" job creation.

Midwest Governors Like The Money, Not The Strings

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Midwestern governors wound up their annual conference Wednesday after agreeing they want more money and less meddling from Washington.

"We (midwestern states) are on the short end of the stick in terms of our relations with the federal government," Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey told the chief executives.

"I know that in the Midwest, we sort of scorn federal handouts — even when they came along in the 1950s with the Interstate highway system," he said. "The very idea that federal dollars are tainted and we ought to pride ourselves in foregoing federal handouts still may make nice oratory at election time, but the fact is that unless you get it from the federal government, you have to get it from the taxpayer."

The governors approved without debate a resolution offered by Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen that the federal government reexamine its formula for spending in the states.

North Dakota Gov. Arthur A. Link was the lone dissenter to a resolution offered by Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon that asked the Environmental Protection Agency to allow some discharges of warm water by power plants into streams. Link said the resolution was too broad.

Two resolutions on agriculture held over from Tuesday were approved without debate.

The resolutions asked "that the federal government refrain from intervention in the farm economy through the use of the embargo of agricultural exports" and for "revision of the 1964 Meat Imports Law and limitation of imports that are produced under subsidy."

Gov. Robert F. Bennett of Kansas said the reworked resolutions had been "made so bland we can all vote for them.

"Which is sort of like the rest of the mountain of paper we cover at this conference, that no one ever reads — except our staffs and us just before we vote on it."

The governors turned down a staff proposal to hire a fulltime energy coordinator.

Chairman Richard F. Kneip of South Dakota turned the conference over to Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond who will chair the 1977 meeting at Checotah, Okla.

Bond, at 36 the youngest governor to chair the conference, said the next meeting would concern itself with fewer resolutions and more discussion on mutual problems.

Two Quakes Kill Many In China

TOKYO (AP) — Two huge earthquakes that hit heavily populated northeast China Wednesday caused "great losses to people's life and property," the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua said Thursday.

Hsinhua, in a broadcast monitored here, said that Tangshan City, an industrial center located near the epicenter of the first quake 100 miles east-southeast of Peking, suffered "extremely serious damages and losses." The agency gave no casualty figures.

Witnesses said there was widespread destruction in the big port city of Tientsin, 80 miles southeast of Peking.

In the capital, frightened residents, plastic tents and makeshift hospitals crowded the streets. Japanese press reports from Peking said the first quake, which struck before dawn, collapsed old brick buildings, sent residents fleeing into rainswept avenues and cut off electricity in many sections.

Barry Religh, a geophysicist at the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, Calif., said major earthquakes in northeast China had been expected by Chinese scientists.

Religh returned from China two weeks ago. He said if there was no warning of the quakes "the death toll certainly could be more than 10,000."

However, former Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam who was visiting Tientsin, said on his return to Tokyo, "There were some people killed, but we were told not many." The nine-story hotel where Whitlam and his wife were staying "split in half, down the middle in two halves," he said. Mrs. Whitlam was slightly injured.

In Washington, the White House said the U.S. liaison office in Peking reported all Americans in Peking and Tientsin were safe. U.S. mission head Thomas Gates offered any American aid that the Chinese might want.

The Canadian ambassador to Peking, C.J. Small, told Canadian Press by telephone that the quakes were a "great tragedy" and that the Chinese people had not yet been told the full extent of the damage.

Hsinhua made its first mention of the quakes 20 hours after the first tremor, saying "damage of varying degrees was reported."

Hsinhua's report of a great loss of life came in a message of condolence from Communist party leaders to officials in the stricken areas. It also noted Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung's "great concern."

The only specific casualty report came from the Japanese embassy in Peking. It said one Japanese trading company official was killed, six Japanese were injured and two were missing in Tangshan, 70 miles northeast of Tientsin, where they were working on a project.

After arriving in Tokyo Wednesday night, Whitlam said most modern structures in Tientsin, a city of 4.3 million people, withstood the quake, but older buildings "collapsed completely."

Although the Chinese have reported success in predicting previous quakes and evacuating people, there was no known warning of Wednesday's quakes.

Whitlam said his hotel got an "immense tearing around" in the first tremor that was followed by "very large explosions on the horizon" and numerous aftershocks. He said he believed the explosions were caused by the quake.

His wife, Margaret, was injured when a heavy chest of drawers toppled on their bed, Whitlam said, but they were led safely out of the darkened hotel by a Chinese official. Her leg injury was cleansed and bandaged, and she appeared with her husband at his Tokyo news conference.

After the tremor shook the hotel, guests streamed outside wearing pajamas or wrapped in sheets, she said. Whitlam said he had to step across a one-foot-wide crack in the floor to leave the hotel.

Chinese officials told Whitlam the quake's epicenter was 45 miles northwest of Tientsin.

W. German Power Alarms Allies

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Germany's money and military power, growing stronger with a weakening North Atlantic Alliance, has begun alarming some of America's best friends in Europe.

U.S. officials say the Ford administration has been informally advised of these new fears of resurgent German influence. Among countries which have done so, informants said, are France, Britain, Holland, Norway, Belgium and Luxembourg.

On the surface, at least, President Ford has shown no sign of being impressed by the reported anxieties of these states. During the mid-July visit of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in Washington, Ford characterized Germany as "a model of stability, social justice and economic well-being."

European authorities readily acknowledge the Germans right now are acting like good allies. They are easily the biggest net payers into the coffers of the nine-nation European Common Market. Their 580,000-strong armed forces are the biggest national contingent committed to NATO's defense system. They have contributed more than any other single Europe state to prop the economies of Italy, Portugal and others.

But these things also have served to sharpen a vision of future German assertiveness among some worried European governments. It's an assertiveness their diplomats profess to detect in Schmidt's tendency to lecture fellow politicians in Europe.

In Washington recently, the chancellor embarrassed the United States, Britain and France when he claimed their heads of government had agreed in Puerto Rico to withhold economic aid from Italy if Communists joined the Rome government.

Earlier this summer he publicly assailed the long-term internal politics of France, Spain and Portugal, spurring French Premier Jacques Chirac to complain about what he called those "thoughtless remarks."

But the concern of Germany's former foes goes deeper than a resentment against Schmidt's comments.

European leaders publicly and privately have pinpointed some of their anxieties:

— President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France has said French conventional forces are being strengthened because of the swelling power of the Communist Warsaw Pact countries and also because too-strong West German forces could create an imbalance in West Europe.

— Prime Minister Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg recalled recently that Germany had started, and lost, two world wars and yet today is top power in West Europe. Then he added: "This can be very hard for some to take."

— Dutch Defense Minister Henk Vredeling, arguing for a greater national defense effort, warned that the alternative would be for the Germans to take on a bigger military load. He wondered if Holland would like that to happen.

— British authorities have said the Germans, after up-valuing their mark four times since the 1960s, now seem to be heading toward a position of dominating the Common Market. That was to them unhealthy.

In discussing these and other issues with the Nord administration, European authorities have called attention to what they see as another danger.

The unity and effectiveness of NATO is weakening along its southern flank from Portugal, through Italy, to Greece and Turkey. In some of those countries, and in France too, socialists and Communists have begun working together. This could open the doors for the Communists to achieve elected office.

In such a situation, European diplomats are saying, U.S. links with NATO may well be loosened and replaced instead by closer American-West German military and economic collaboration. This, in their view, would only enhance Germany's political and military role to a point when the Germans would be able to dominate the economic, political and military life of West Europe.

The Schmidt government disclaims any such ambition.

Some politicians in West Germany have speculated that their critics may deliberately be trying to stoke up old memories of Germany under Hitler as a way of discrediting the country's economic achievements.

"We don't dream of it," Schmidt remarked some months ago in a reference to the idea of a dominant Germany. "I warn everyone not to think of it."

One explanation suggested by U.S. officials is that the Germans themselves are facing elections this year.

Whatever the truth, certain countries have quietly been making some dispositions of their own in order to counterbalance the possibility of a Germany grown too powerful.

Doctors Steal $300 Million

Washington — American doctors are stealing more than $300 million a year from Medicare by padding bills, falsifying claims and participating in kickback schemes, Sen. Frank E. Moss, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on longterm care, charged Wednesday.

Smaller $1 Coin Considered

Washington (Washington Star) — The Treasury Department is strongly considering issuing a new, smaller $1 coin, primarily for use in vending machines.

British Sever Relations

London — The British government, it patience exhausted, broke diplomatic relations with the Ugandan government of Idi Amin Wednesday. It marked the first time Britain has severed relations with a Commonwealth nation.

Socialist Party Burglarized

Washington — An FBI agent has testified under oath that he participated in "between 50 and 90" burglaries of the Socialist Workers Party headquarters in New York, according to a deposition made public in a civil law suit. George P. Baxtrum Jr., now attached to the Milwaukee field office of the FBI, said he also made "surreptitious entries" at the headquarters offices of the Young Socialist Alliance in New York.

Soviet Bombers Near Azores

Washington — Soviet backfire bombers have begun appearing over the mid-Atlantic near the Azores Islands on reconnaissance flights from bases near Murmansk, a development that is expected to complicate the Ford administration's plans for last-minute efforts to negotiate a new arms limitation treaty.

Decolonization To Be Probed

Lisbon — The Portuguese president ordered an official inquiry into the colonization of Lisbon's former colony, Timor.

Coastal Town Prospers

Jounieh, Lebanon — The civil war in Lebanon has brought unexpected prosperity and good times to the little coastal town of Junieh, where the Maronite Christians would set up their own state if Lebanon were partitioned.

British Tourism Booming

London — With worldwide recession abating and the value of the pound falling, Britain is experiencing its biggest tourist boom in history.

(c) New York Times News Service

A Tradition Is Waning

London (UPI) — Britain's great institution, afternoon tea, has gone off the boil.

For years the traditional mid-afternoon meal has been declining and now many hotels and restaurants are reluctant to serve it.

But the tea business is booming among tourists in exclusive London hotels — even when cucumber sandwiches cost $1 80 each.

David Billeter, who has surveyed hotels throughout Britain for the Caterer and Hotelkeeper magazine, said, "Most British people are not interested. It is the overseas visitors who are keeping the meal alive."

Despite the decline of the afternoon tea, Britons still enjoy their daily cup — more than 100 billion cups of tea are drunk in the country every year.

Viking's Scoop Does Its Thing

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Viking 1, America's robot laboratory on Mars, scooped up a handful of Martian soil Wednesday and quickly began searching the dirt for traces of life.

The event marked the first time man has scratched the surface of another planet, sending data back to Earth.

"I'm delighted, ecstatic!" said chief Viking scientist Dr. Gerald Soffen upon learning of the successful operation. "I can't tell you how thrilled I am."

Although analysis of the Martian material began almost immediately, it may be a matter of weeks before conclusions about life on the red planet can safely be drawn.

Early Wednesday morning, the telescoping sampler arm interrupted the Martian silence when, with a whirring, cranking noise, it descended to the red desert surface.

Then the claw on the end of the arm opened wide and plunged several inches into the soil, grabbing a scoopful of the Martian surface. As the arm withdrew, it left a streak on the Martian soil.

The material beneath the surface looked like wet sand, much darker and seemingly more cohesive than the dirt above it. Sharp edges along the bank of the dig seemed to indicate that the Martian subsoil was not dusty as had been thought.

But scientists said they needed more data from one of the experiments aboard the craft to estimate the composition of the soil.

With a portion of Mars in its grasp, the arm slowly retreated back to the lander. Paused above a funnel, the arm shook itself violently, separating the fine materials in its sample and dropped the soil onto a rotating Lazy Susan-like platter.

The platter then spun around, and if all went according to plan, distributed smaller amounts to three different biology experiments aboard the lander.

The sampler arm was to make three different digging expeditions in its Martian neighborhood, delivering soil samples to three different minilaboratories for analysis.

Christian Lashes U.S.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — One of Lebanon's top Christian leaders accused the United States on Wednesday of succumbing to Palestinian guerrilla influence in Lebanon's civil war.

"The U.S. State Department policy has never been...courteous as far as the Lebanese crisis is involved," said Camille Chamoun, Christian Interior Minister and former president.

Chamoun was reacting to Tuesday's sea evacuation of about 300 Americans and others from this war-battered city. The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) helped provide protection for the evacuation, under arrangements made with U.S. officials.

Chamoun, recently named by Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh as foreign minister, lashed at the new U.S. ambassador to Lebanon, Talcott Seelye, who left with the other evacuees.

In a statement broadcast by the Christan-held Amchit radio, Chamoun said that in his five weeks in Beirut Seelye had never tried to meet with him or Franjieh.

Two Quakes Kill Many In China

TOKYO (AP) — Two huge earthquakes that hit heavily populated northeast China Wednesday caused "great losses to people's life and property," the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua said Thursday.

Hsinhua, in a broadcast monitored here, said that Tangshan City, an industrial center located near the epicenter of the first quake 100 miles east-southeast of Peking, suffered "extremely serious damages and losses." The agency gave no casualty figures.

Witnesses said there was widespread destruction in the big port city of Tientsin, 80 miles southeast of Peking.

In the capital, frightened residents, plastic tents and makeshift hospitals crowded the streets. Japanese press reports from Peking said the first quake, which struck before dawn, collapsed old brick buildings, sent residents fleeing into rainswept avenues and cut off electricity in many sections.

Barry Religh, a geophysicist at the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, Calif., said major earthquakes in northeast China had been expected by Chinese scientists.

Religh returned from China two weeks ago. He said if there was no warning of the quakes "the death toll certainly could be more than 10,000."

However, former Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam who was visiting Tientsin, said on his return to Tokyo, "There were some people killed, but we were told not many." The nine-story hotel where Whitlam and his wife were staying "split in half, down the middle in two halves," he said. Mrs. Whitlam was slightly injured.

In Washington, the White House said the U.S. liaison office in Peking reported all Americans in Peking and Tientsin were safe. U.S. mission head Thomas Gates offered any American aid that the Chinese might want.

The Canadian ambassador to Peking, C.J. Small, told Canadian Press by telephone that the quakes were a "great tragedy" and that the Chinese people had not yet been told the full extent of the damage.

Hsinhua made its first mention of the quakes 20 hours after the first tremor, saying "damage of varying degrees was reported."

Hsinhua's report of a great loss of life came in a message of condolence from Communist party leaders to officials in the stricken areas. It also noted Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung's "great concern."

The only specific casualty report came from the Japanese embassy in Peking. It said one Japanese trading company official was killed, six Japanese were injured and two were missing in Tangshan, 70 miles northeast of Tientsin, where they were working on a project.

After arriving in Tokyo Wednesday night, Whitlam said most modern structures in Tientsin, a city of 4.3 million people, withstood the quake, but older buildings "collapsed completely."

Although the Chinese have reported success in predicting previous quakes and evacuating people, there was no known warning of Wednesday's quakes.

Whitlam said his hotel got an "immense tearing around" in the first tremor that was followed by "very large explosions on the horizon" and numerous aftershocks. He said he believed the explosions were caused by the quake.

His wife, Margaret, was injured when a heavy chest of drawers toppled on their bed, Whitlam said, but they were led safely out of the darkened hotel by a Chinese official. Her leg injury was cleansed and bandaged, and she appeared with her husband at his Tokyo news conference.

After the tremor shook the hotel, guests streamed outside wearing pajamas or wrapped in sheets, she said. Whitlam said he had to step across a one-foot-wide crack in the floor to leave the hotel.

Chinese officials told Whitlam the quake's epicenter was 45 miles northwest of Tientsin.

W. German Power Alarms Allies

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Germany's money and military power, growing stronger with a weakening North Atlantic Alliance, has begun alarming some of America's best friends in Europe.

U.S. officials say the Ford administration has been informally advised of these new fears of resurgent German influence. Among countries which have done so, informants said, are France, Britain, Holland, Norway, Belgium and Luxembourg.

On the surface, at least, President Ford has shown no sign of being impressed by the reported anxieties of these states. During the mid-July visit of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in Washington, Ford characterized Germany as "a model of stability, social justice and economic well-being."

European authorities readily acknowledge the Germans right now are acting like good allies. They are easily the biggest net payers into the coffers of the nine-nation European Common Market. Their 580,000-strong armed forces are the biggest national contingent committed to NATO's defense system. They have contributed more than any other single Europe state to prop the economies of Italy, Portugal and others.

But these things also have served to sharpen a vision of future German assertiveness among some worried European governments. It's an assertiveness their diplomats profess to detect in Schmidt's tendency to lecture fellow politicians in Europe.

In Washington recently, the chancellor embarrassed the United States, Britain and France when he claimed their heads of government had agreed in Puerto Rico to withhold economic aid from Italy if Communists joined the Rome government.

Earlier this summer he publicly assailed the long-term internal politics of France, Spain and Portugal, spurring French Premier Jacques Chirac to complain about what he called those "thoughtless remarks."

But the concern of Germany's former foes goes deeper than a resentment against Schmidt's comments.

European leaders publicly and privately have pinpointed some of their anxieties:

— President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France has said French conventional forces are being strengthened because of the swelling power of the Communist Warsaw Pact countries and also because too-strong West German forces could create an imbalance in West Europe.

— Prime Minister Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg recalled recently that Germany had started, and lost, two world wars and yet today is top power in West Europe. Then he added: "This can be very hard for some to take."

— Dutch Defense Minister Henk Vredeling, arguing for a greater national defense effort, warned that the alternative would be for the Germans to take on a bigger military load. He wondered if Holland would like that to happen.

— British authorities have said the Germans, after up-valuing their mark four times since the 1960s, now seem to be heading toward a position of dominating the Common Market. That was to them unhealthy.

In discussing these and other issues with the Nord administration, European authorities have called attention to what they see as another danger.

The unity and effectiveness of NATO is weakening along its southern flank from Portugal, through Italy, to Greece and Turkey. In some of those countries, and in France too, socialists and Communists have begun working together. This could open the doors for the Communists to achieve elected office.

In such a situation, European diplomats are saying, U.S. links with NATO may well be loosened and replaced instead by closer American-West German military and economic collaboration. This, in their view, would only enhance Germany's political and military role to a point when the Germans would be able to dominate the economic, political and military life of West Europe.

The Schmidt government disclaims any such ambition.

Some politicians in West Germany have speculated that their critics may deliberately be trying to stoke up old memories of Germany under Hitler as a way of discrediting the country's economic achievements.

"We don't dream of it," Schmidt remarked some months ago in a reference to the idea of a dominant Germany. "I warn everyone not to think of it."

One explanation suggested by U.S. officials is that the Germans themselves are facing elections this year.

Whatever the truth, certain countries have quietly been making some dispositions of their own in order to counterbalance the possibility of a Germany grown too powerful.

Water Subsidy Not Wrong

In asking the City Council to take yet another look at Lincoln's water rates, the Chamber of Commerce spoke in favor of rates geared more closely to cost of service. We hope the council takes a long time to decide that one, and then turns the proposal down.

When all is said and done, we believe that Councilwoman Sue Bailey struck the right chord when she said: "The problem is, there are about 50 ways to decide the cost of service."

We doubt that there are any two experts in the business who could agree on the cost of service for just about any utility, be it water, gas, electricity, telephones, etc. There are simply too many subjective matters to consider, too many speculative aspects involved, for anyone to say definitively what is the exact cost of service to various classes of customers.

We are confident that if you hired a consultant and let him know your preferences, he could come up with pretty well whatever you wanted by way of cost of service. We would not be surprised at cost-of-service figures that varied by 20 to 30%, depending upon who prepared them and their own philosophical or political outlook.

Beyond that, there is a social concern in all this that has been an essential element of things in the past and definitely needs to be continued. If you went strictly on cost of service, the rate to the lowest of users of water would simply be outrageously prohibitive.

But very few utilities completely buy such a concept. It has always been acceptable theory and practice for utilities to serve less economical segments of the public at some added expense to the more economical segments.

Thus, all people and all areas end up with service. If it were any other way, many people and many areas would receive no service, at all.

This is the concept that spawned public power in Nebraska, following the refusal or inability of private electric companies to serve customers of questionable profitability. The private company approach simply left rural Nebraska literally in the dark.

Even so, the Lincoln Electric System and other publicly owned electric distributors continue to demonstrate a strong affinity for the old system of rates fixed on cost of service.

Such a tendency is not hard to understand, as no one running a business wants to hang on to losing operations but there are times when the overall public welfare transcends such narrow views of profitability.

The suggestions made by the Chamber in the matter of water rates and cost of service should be viewed by the City Council with all the skepticism at its command.

Do you suppose the Ku Klux Klan will get the picture? Planning an Omaha anti-busing rally Saturday, its members may find their rooms cancelled at a local motel. They will find their request for police protection turned down. What's the picture? They really are not welcome.

Fact is, the Klan isn't welcome anywhere that we know of. One of its spokesmen said the organization doesn't advocate violence except for "defensive purpose." He said the group advocates passive resistance such as lying down in front of buses, demonstrations, picketing buses, not sending children to school and organizing tutors in neighborhoods so parents don't have to send children to school.

He went on to explain the virtues of the group's membership secrecy policy.

If what the Klan stood for were not bad enough, its tactics would be. Its passive resistance is about as likely to lead to violence as anything we could imagine.

As for secret organizations, one might say they are not exactly in vogue. What the secrecy means is that the group cannot stand the light of day, that it must hide itself from public view. Any group that has to hide behind some cover is not in the mold of the country's democratic system.

There have been times and issues which warranted the kind of passive resistance practiced by the Klan but the Klan's program is not in that category. It seeks to promote the cause of discrimination and that is a cause that, hopefully, this country long ago relegated to the trash heap.

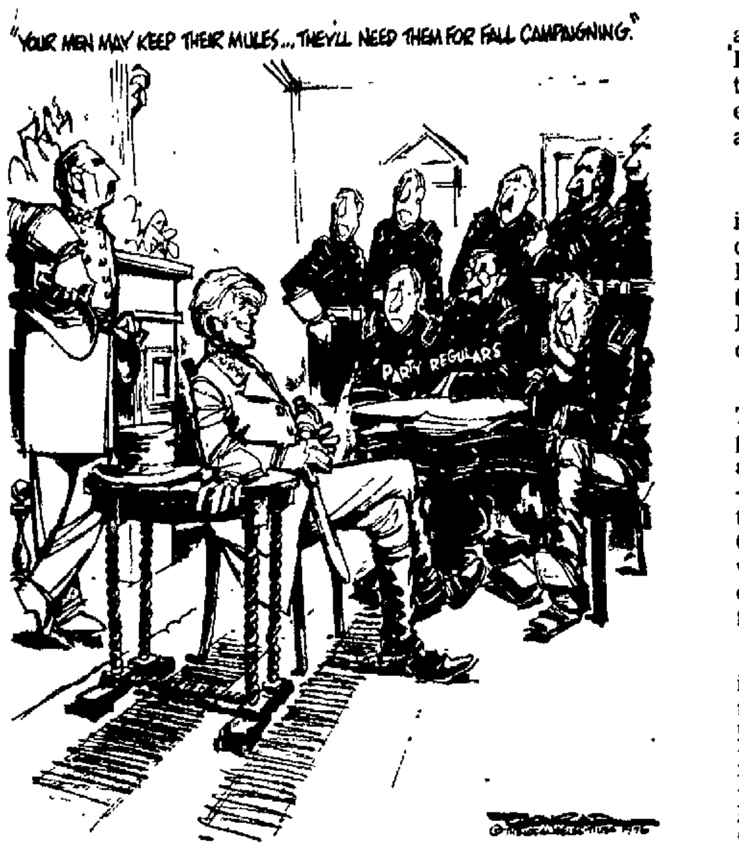
We have not yet succeeded in fully implementing a policy of non-discrimination but we are trying. The Omaha busing program represents such an effort, as imperfect as it might be.

Omaha, to date, has not appeared to have the kind of struggle over busing that has plagued some other cities. It would be sad, indeed, if a group such as the Klan were able to provoke a difficulty in Omaha that might otherwise never surface.

But we suspect that Omaha will not be unduly influenced by the Klan, that the city will solve its school integration problems with the good sense and understanding that have been characteristic of its past. A violent confrontation on the issue would greatly damage the city and be of benefit to absolutely no one.

RALPH DE TOLEDANO

Iron Will, Iron Whim, Iron Hand



"YOUR MEN MAY KEEP THEIR MULES... THEY'LL NEED THEM FOR FALL CAMPAIGNING."
PARTY REGULARS

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter has made it plain that he intends to run the Democratic Party with an iron hand. This will sadden those liberals who have been working for a party in which decisions are made by the majority.

Carter has also made it plain that, with the nomination his, he will begin the steady movement to the left which seems to be the course of all Democratic candidates to high office. His selection of Sen. Walter Mondale as his running-mate is but the tip of the iceberg.

Even before the Democratic convention had gone through the motions of nominating Carter, it was being said with some satisfaction by the more left-oriented delegates that he was, in reality, a "closet liberal." This, perhaps, gives him too much credit. Carter will do and say only what will help get him elected.

The move to the left will get him the kind of organizational support he needs. He always had a strong infusion of left support in the one-time supporters of Sen. George McGovern, although they were kept under wraps during the period of the primaries. But from the moment he had the nomination clinched, he began making overtures to those elements in the Democratic Party from which he had previously remained aloof.

He had more or less made his peace with George Meany and Big Labor since they are the Democratic Party's major source of campaign funds. He cemented his friendship pact with Meany by giving the vice presidential slot to Mondale, a senator who scratches when the AFL-CIO itches.

Mondale is also dedicated to the big government and federal interventionism that Carter deplored as he went about gathering to himself the delegates he needed. Yet Carter was constrained to say, with a straight face, that Mondale's views and his own were in "perfect compatibility."

(Perhaps he was thinking in terms of his own "consistency" — for and against abortion, for and against adequate defense, for and against untrammeled welfarism.)

The leftward trend is there, though clearly Carter hopes to conduct his campaign on a noble level of fuzziness in the hope that the independent voters essential to victory will not demand sharply defined answers from him. If President Ford is the Republican candidate, Carter may be able to get away with it.

Mr. Ford has already promised Carter a "high-level" campaign on the issues. But since the President has hardly been to the point himself, the nation can expect a political duel of feather cushions at 50 paces.

☆ ☆ ☆

Only Ronald Reagan can engage Carter in the kind of pointed debate which the country needs and deserves at this time. Political observers here agree that only this kind of debate can revitalize the Republican Party and give it a real chance to triumph in November.

It was by "giving 'em hell" that Harry Truman confounded the pundits and the pollsters in 1948. Mr. Ford intends to run as president, to remain above the battle — and this just won't work. He is counting on a bad case of "Deweyitis" in Carter and apathy among the Democrats who showed a remarkable lack of enthusiasm during the New York festivities.

But Carter is a man with a whim of iron, and he is not likely to let the election go down the drain. He will work as hard and as silently to win the election as he did to grab the nomination. Many Republicans realize this, as their own primary results show, but there are others overawed by the thought that it is somehow improper to dump an incumbent president.

These predictions are made in the full knowledge that they may have to be revised in a month or two. The form sheet says that Mr. Ford is a poor campaigner, that Reagan is one of the best. But experience and any horse player will tell you that the favorite does not always win.

Chickens Coming Home

Lincoln, Neb.

There was an advertisement in the July 23rd Star by the racist white army of Rhodesia for soldiers to help keep the black majority of that country in subjugation. The mailing address was included for those interested.

Unfortunately, it was a news story which held the unpaid advertisement for this ignoble cause.

Non-whites are a two-thirds majority on this earth. Sooner or later our chickens will come home to roost.

Experiment A Failure

Lincoln, Neb.

Lincolnites who believe increased car pooling and bus riding are the solution to the city's present and future traffic problems should be made aware of a Los Angeles unsuccessful exercise in coercive "human engineering."

On March 15, the California Department of Transportation instituted a "Diamond Lane" traffic experiment on a stretch of the Santa Monica Freeway. The department painted white, diamond-shaped markers in the inside lanes on each side of the median barrier and reserved those lanes for use by buses and automobiles with three or more people during peak traffic periods in the morning and afternoon.

The experiment has been a failure. A dramatic photograph taken from an overpass showed only a handful of vehicles using the diamond lanes and the other lanes jammed with vehicles during rush-hour traffic. The project has resulted in a more than 500% increase in accidents, more traffic jams, increased travel time, short tempers and other ills for commuters.

So much for another government-mandated attempt to rid people of the flexibility of private automobiles by making it too costly, inconvenient and uncomfortable to use them.

Daily Fight For Liberty

Lincoln, Neb.

Just as it took the majority of the American people from early 1966 to 1973, a period of seven years, to realize that the war in Vietnam was unconstitutional, no-win, and wrong, so will it take them to wake up to the fact that they are caught fast in an oligarchy of wealth that is slowly forming a dictatorship.

As they said, "The war is all right, isn't it? It is against the communists," they will say: "Dictatorship? Don't be silly. We can still vote." But the question is how we are maneuvered into whom we can vote for!

The Americans just cannot visualize a conspiracy against them to deprive them of their rights. They don't believe that liberty has to be fought for each and every day and does not renew itself. They can't see that in a vacuum, bad government moves in to replace what was formerly in the vacuum. They can't see a police state in the making, with the overspending for police protection.

Well, they should wake up before it's too late!

Reagan people cry out: "Foul!"
And Ford's folks: "Wait and see."

Those of us yet unannointed

Patchwork Prairie Country

The shining well-scrubbed morning face of the world returned this morning after a nice rain in our area. The rain was followed by low-hung clouds that remained. Although the humidity was stifling, it was bearable knowing the earth was sodden. The fields plants lifted their leaves and it seemed I could almost see the green things growing. The wind through the silvery tawny grass along the roadway had a fresh, well-scrubbed scent — a summer's accumulation of dust had been washed from it.

The Farmer had disked the wheat stubble once before the rain. Now there will be other work in the fields . . . keeping the weeds down in summer fallow ground, plowing the stubble or continued disking if plowing is not done.

Each year it seems the summer comes and goes at a more rapid pace. It seems scarcely believable that the month of July has come and almost gone.

I have been taking a cross-country trip, via a book written by Charlton Ogburn. The title is "The Continent in Our Hands." The author has a fond view of the American continent and believes in it. He assesses our heritage, gives the geological history of each area and admires the natural phenomena. He also includes the moral principles about the use of our land and man's obligation for preserving our continent.

As the travel unfolds, it seems the writer not only is a geologist but also a part-time ornithologist, botanist, historian and philosopher.

I especially enjoyed his impression of the Grand Canyon and his philosophy of man in relation to time and the universe.

Perhaps the landing of Viking I on Mars the past week and the photographs of the planet made the book more interesting since this book includes much of the early scientific knowledge including the upheaval of the mountains and glacial strata.

Since my chances of traveling to Mars are remote, I feel well rewarded by learning more of our own earthly planet.

It seems the frost this past spring damaged the potatoes in this area. We have not planted potatoes for a number of years but those who did include them in the gardens this year report few potatoes and small ones, at that.

We are going to have tomatoes like we have never had before. They are large and still growing. Each day I go out to see if I can detect a small yellow-red shading to indicate some of them have at last reached their maximum size and are ripening. So far not a hint of ripening.

The Hale peaches have a nice rosy blush coloring. I haven't picked any as yet but perhaps today when I go to the orchard I will bring several to the house.

Barring any unforeseen catastrophe like a damaging hail storm within the week, we should have two or three bushels of peaches.

As the peaches ripen, there is the most tantalizing sweet nectar scent around the trees. I could linger there an hour or more just sniffing the air. With all the other things there are to do, I do not find the time.

After the rain the heavenly blue morning glories burst into bloom. The trellis is not tall enough. Consequently when the vines reached the top they sent out runners groping skyward as if looking for a sky hook to sustain them. Finally they twined around each other in a looped design across the top. Now the flowers sway in the breeze and the mornings are colorful by my back step.

Unfortunately they don't last long. Perhaps that is the way with life . . . all good things come in such small packets.

MAN ON A LILY-WHITE HORSE

WASHINGTON — There is one way, without breaking or changing any existing party rules, or violating any delegate pledges, that supporters of Ronald Reagan can virtually assure his nomination for president when the Republicans convene in Kansas City.

It is absolutely aboveboard, completely legal, and would almost certainly result in victory for the Californian no later than the fourth ballot.

It is predicated on the fact, acknowledged by strategists in both the Reagan and Ford camps, that a not insubstantial number of delegates committed to vote for Ford on one ballot actually prefer Reagan — 87 by my count — enough, if all were to vote their hearts, to deny the President the nomination.

It permits these delegates to fulfill their legal and moral commitments to Ford and still vote their convictions.

It is simple. It is this: Two-thirds of the 87 Reagan-hearted Ford delegates would simply pass on the first roll call. (The right to pass — as distinct from "abstain" — is clear and unchallenged by either camp.) The other 29 would fulfill their obligation by voting for the President who nonetheless would not be able to achieve a majority due to the 58 passes.

On the second ballot, half (i.e. 29) of the remaining passes would vote for Ford, while the final 29 would pass a second time. At this point, the 29 who voted for Ford on the first ballot, having fulfilled their obligation to the President, would be free to jump to Reagan; and Ford, with no net gain, would still be short of a majority.

On the third ballot, ditto. The remaining 29 passes would cast the obligatory vote for Ford, while their colleagues would switch to Reagan. Net gain for Ford: Zero; for Reagan: Up now 58. On the fourth ballot, all 87 delegates once committed to Ford would be in the Reagan column. Legally, morally, without possible challenge.

That is basically why John Sears is not lying or even exaggerating when he says Ronald Reagan has 1,140 votes right now — 10 more than needed for nomination. It also explains why the President's people, who, as they claim, have a majority or near-majority on paper, are petrified that it will disappear in short order when the voting begins.

And there is precious little Ford can do about it, because few will deny that Reagan's supporters are organized and savvy enough to pull off a convention floor coup of the type described above.

Of course, a Reagan victory on the basis of the strategy outlined here depends upon a lot of other factors remaining equal between now and the completion of three or four convention votes, something that is obviously not likely. It also depends upon a pretty even split of the uncommitteds.

What it shows, however, is that delegate counts at this stage don't mean much. Indeed, while most handicappers are now giving Ford the edge, this one would, ever-so-cautiously, have to go with Reagan on the basis of the depth of his supporters' commitment, their organizational ability, their demonstrated skill at floor maneuverings in past conventions, the procedural rules at their disposal, and the numbers of them who are in the Ford camp — for one vote only.

In this observer's view, there may be a Trojan horse lurking on the White House lawn, and the brand from here looks suspiciously like Double-R.

Water Subsidy Not Wrong

In asking the City Council to take yet another look at Lincoln's water rates, the Chamber of Commerce spoke in favor of rates geared more closely to cost of service. We hope the council takes a long time to decide that one, and then turns the proposal down.

When all is said and done, we believe that Councilwoman Sue Bailey struck the right chord when she said: "The problem is, there are about 50 ways to decide the cost of service."

We doubt that there are any two experts in the business who could agree on the cost of service for just about any utility, be it water, gas, electricity, telephones, etc. There are simply too many subjective matters to consider, too many speculative aspects involved, for anyone to say definitively what is the exact cost of service to various classes of customers.

We are confident that if you hired a consultant and let him know your preferences, he could come up with pretty well whatever you wanted by way of cost of service. We would not be surprised at cost-of-service figures that varied by 20 to 30%, depending upon who prepared them and their own philosophical or political outlook.

Beyond that, there is a social concern in all this that has been an essential element of things in the past and definitely needs to be continued. If you went strictly on cost of service, the rate to the lowest of users of water would simply be outrageously prohibitive.

But very few utilities completely buy such a concept. It has always been acceptable theory and practice for utilities to serve less economical segments of the public at some added expense to the more economical segments.

Thus, all people and all areas end up with service. If it were any other way, many people and many areas would receive no service, at all.

This is the concept that spawned public power in Nebraska, following the refusal or inability of private electric companies to serve customers of questionable profitability. The private company approach simply left rural Nebraska literally in the dark.

Even so, the Lincoln Electric System and other publicly owned electric distributors continue to demonstrate a strong affinity for the old system of rates fixed on cost of service.

Such a tendency is not hard to understand, as no one running a business wants to hang on to losing operations but there are times when the overall public welfare transcends such narrow views of profitability.

The suggestions made by the Chamber in the matter of water rates and cost of service should be viewed by the City Council with all the skepticism at its command.

Do you suppose the Ku Klux Klan will get the picture? Planning an Omaha anti-busing rally Saturday, its members may find their rooms cancelled at a local motel. They will find their request for police protection turned down. What's the picture? They really are not welcome.

Fact is, the Klan isn't welcome anywhere that we know of. One of its spokesmen said the organization doesn't advocate violence except for "defensive purpose." He said the group advocates passive resistance such as lying down in front of buses, demonstrations, picketing buses, not sending children to school and organizing tutors in neighborhoods so parents don't have to send children to school.

He went on to explain the virtues of the group's membership secrecy policy.

If what the Klan stood for were not bad enough, its tactics would be. Its passive resistance is about as likely to lead to violence as anything we could imagine.

As for secret organizations, one might say they are not exactly in vogue. What the secrecy means is that the group cannot stand the light of day, that it must hide itself from public view. Any group that has to hide behind some cover is not in the mold of the country's democratic system.

There have been times and issues which warranted the kind of passive resistance practiced by the Klan but the Klan's program is not in that category. It seeks to promote the cause of discrimination and that is a cause that, hopefully, this country long ago relegated to the trash heap.

We have not yet succeeded in fully implementing a policy of non-discrimination but we are trying. The Omaha busing program represents such an effort, as imperfect as it might be.

Omaha, to date, has not appeared to have the kind of struggle over busing that has plagued some other cities. It would be sad, indeed, if a group such as the Klan were able to provoke a difficulty in Omaha that might otherwise never surface.

But we suspect that Omaha will not be unduly influenced by the Klan, that the city will solve its school integration problems with the good sense and understanding that have been characteristic of its past. A violent confrontation on the issue would greatly damage the city and be of benefit to absolutely no one.

RALPH DE TOLEDANO

Iron Will, Iron Whim, Iron Hand

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter has made it plain that he intends to run the Democratic Party with an iron hand. This will sadden those liberals who have been working for a party in which decisions are made by the majority.

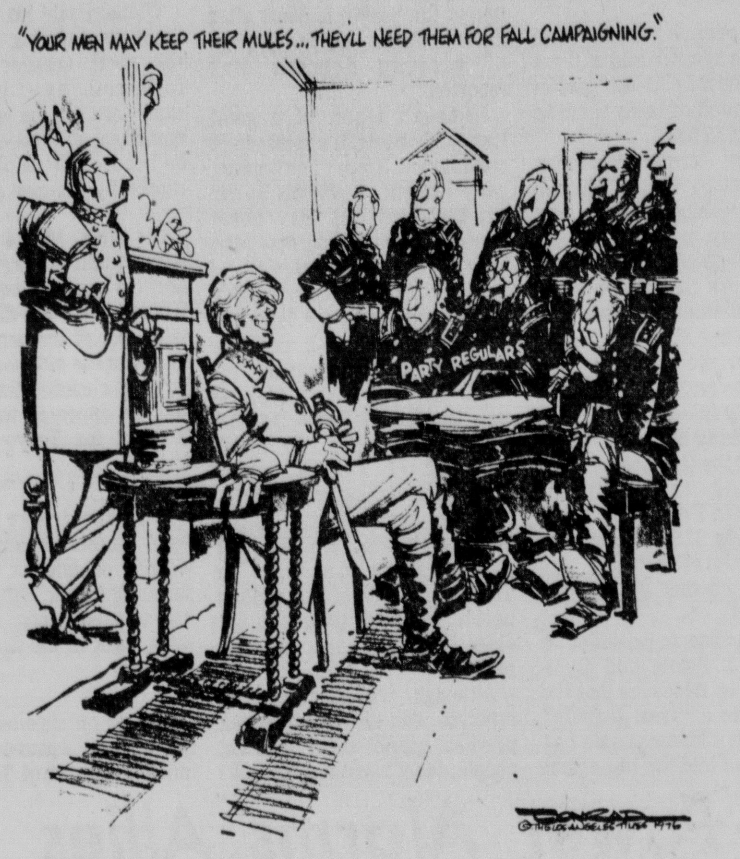
Carter has also made it plain that, with the nomination his, he will begin the steady movement to the left which seems to be the course of all Democratic candidates to high office. His selection of Sen. Walter Mondale as his running-mate is but the tip of the iceberg.

Even before the Democratic convention had gone through the motions of nominating Carter, it was being said with some satisfaction by the more left-oriented delegates that he was, in reality, a "closet liberal." This, perhaps, gives him too much credit. Carter will do and say only what will help get him elected.

The move to the left will get him the kind of organizational support he needs. He always had a strong infusion of left support in the one-time supporters of Sen. George McGovern, although they were kept under wraps during the period of the primaries. But from the moment he had the nomination clinched, he began making overtures to those elements in the Democratic Party from which he had previously remained aloof.

He had more or less made his peace with George Meany and Big Labor since they are the Democratic Party's major source of campaign funds. He cemented his friendship pact with Meany by giving the vice presidential slot to Mondale, a senator who scratches when the AFL-CIO itches.

☆ ☆ ☆



"YOUR MEN MAY KEEP THEIR MULES... THEY'LL NEED THEM FOR FALL CAMPAIGNING."
PARTY REGULARS

Mondale is also dedicated to the big government and federal interventionism that Carter deplored as he went about gathering to himself the delegates he needed. Yet Carter was constrained to say, with a straight face, that Mondale's views and his own were in "perfect compatibility."

(Perhaps he was thinking in terms of his own "consistency" — for and against abortion, for and against adequate defense, for and against untrammeled welfarism.)

The leftward trend is there, though clearly Carter hopes to conduct his campaign on a noble level of fuzziness in the hope that the independent voters essential to victory will not demand sharply defined answers from him. If President Ford is the Republican candidate, Carter may be able to get away with it.

Mr. Ford has already promised Carter a "high-level" campaign on the issues. But since the President has hardly been to the point himself, the nation can expect a political duel of feather cushions at 50 paces.

☆ ☆ ☆

Only Ronald Reagan can engage Carter in the kind of pointed debate which the country needs and deserves at this time. Political observers here agree that only this kind of debate can revitalize the Republican Party and give it a real chance to triumph in November.

It was by "giving 'em hell" that Harry Truman confounded the pundits and the pollsters in 1948. Mr. Ford intends to run as president, to remain above the battle — and this just won't work. He is counting on a bad case of "Deweyitis" in Carter and apathy among the Democrats who showed a remarkable lack of enthusiasm during the New York festivities.

But Carter is a man with a whim of iron, and he is not likely to let the election go down the drain. He will work as hard and as silently to win the election as he did to grab the nomination. Many Republicans realize this, as their own primary results show, but there are others overawed by the thought that it is somehow improper to dump an incumbent president.

These predictions are made in the full knowledge that they may have to be revised in a month or two. The form sheet says that Mr. Ford is a poor campaigner, that Reagan is one of the best. But experience and any horse player will tell you that the favorite does not always win.

Unfortunately, it was a news story which held the unpaid advertisement for this ignoble cause.

Non-whites are a two-thirds majority on this earth. Sooner or later our chickens will come home to roost.

Experiment A Failure

Lincoln, Neb.

Lincolnites who believe increased car pooling and bus riding are the solution to the city's present and future traffic problems should be made aware of a Los Angeles unsuccessful exercise in coercive "human engineering."

On March 15, the California Department of Transportation instituted a "Diamond Lane" traffic experiment on a stretch of the Santa Monica Freeway. The department painted white, diamond-shaped markers in the inside lanes on each side of the median barrier and reserved those lanes for use by buses and automobiles with three or more people during peak traffic periods in the morning and afternoon.

The experiment has been a failure. A dramatic photograph taken from an overpass showed only a handful of vehicles using the diamond lanes and the other lanes jammed with vehicles during rush-hour traffic. The project has resulted in a more than 500% increase in accidents, more traffic jams, increased travel time, short tempers and other ills for commuters.

So much for another government-mandated attempt to rid people of the flexibility of private automobiles by making it too costly, inconvenient and uncomfortable to use them.

Daily Fight For Liberty

Lincoln, Neb.

Just as it took the majority of the American people from early 1966 to 1973, a period of seven years, to realize that the war in Vietnam was unconstitutional, no-win, and wrong, so will it take them to wake up to the fact that they are caught fast in an oligarchy of wealth that is slowly forming a dictatorship.

As they said, "The war is all right, isn't it? It is against the communists," they will say: "Dictatorship? Don't be silly. We can still vote." But the question is how we are maneuvered into whom we can vote for!

The Americans just cannot visualize a conspiracy against them to deprive them of their rights. They don't believe that liberty has to be fought for each and every day and does not renew itself. They can't see that in a vacuum, bad government moves in to replace what was formerly in the vacuum. They can't see a police state in the making, with the overspending for police protection.

Well, they should wake up before it's too late!

Iowa Authorities Capture Escaped Prisoner Fritz

SIDNEY, Iowa (AP) — Information provided by a 16-year-old Leavenworth, Kan. youth who was allegedly abducted by a prisoner who escaped Tuesday from a hospital in Leavenworth, Kan., led Iowa authorities to Robert Earl Fritz, 35, Wednesday morning.

Shortly after being taken into custody in Sidney, Iowa, Fritz was rushed to Grape Community Hospital in Hamburg, Iowa for an apparent heart attack. His condition was not immediately determined.

Fritz faces possible kidnapping, theft and escape charges in Kansas. He escaped early Tuesday morning from the Cushing Memorial Hospital in Leavenworth, Kan., after surprising a guard assigned to his room. He was being treated for a heart condition.

He was serving a term of 13-50 years at the Kansas State Penitentiary in Lansing on conviction in Brown County of burglary, theft and rape.

Fritz' incarceration on those charges followed an eight-day reign of terror in Kansas and Nebraska folowing his escape from the Nebraska Penal Complex, Jan. 31, 1974.

The youth Fritz allegedly abducted, Rick Lee Simpson, was intercepted in his pickup truck on Interstate 29, just north of St. Joseph, Mo. by a Missouri Highway Patrol officer early Wednesday morning.

Patrolman George C. Scott said after Fritz reportedly released him unharmed near Sidney, Simpson began driving home. Scott said the youth stopped at a truck stop in Iowa and told several truck drivers he had been robbed and that he was going home and planned to make no more stops along the way.

Scott said the truckers kept track of Simpson as he drove south and using citizen band radio, contacted someone who then contacted the patrol. Eventually, the patrol was able to talk to the truckers following Simpson by use of the radios.

Scott said he intercepted Simpson and asked the youth if he had a problem.

"I didn't know anything about a kidnaping, the first information I had was that he had been robbed," Scott said. "He told me he had been kidnaped by the escapee out of Leavenworth."

Simpson told the patrolman he had been fishing at a farm pond Tuesday on the west edge of Leavenworth. As he returned to his truck just before sunset, the youth noticed a man inside the vehicle trying to hot-wire it. It was then Fritz allegedly abducted Simpson.

"He told me the man had an ax, the regular long-handled woodman's kind, and a hayhook," Scott said. "He said there was something under his belt that was shiny and he fumbled with it occasionally and he believed it was a pistol, although he didn't see it," he added.

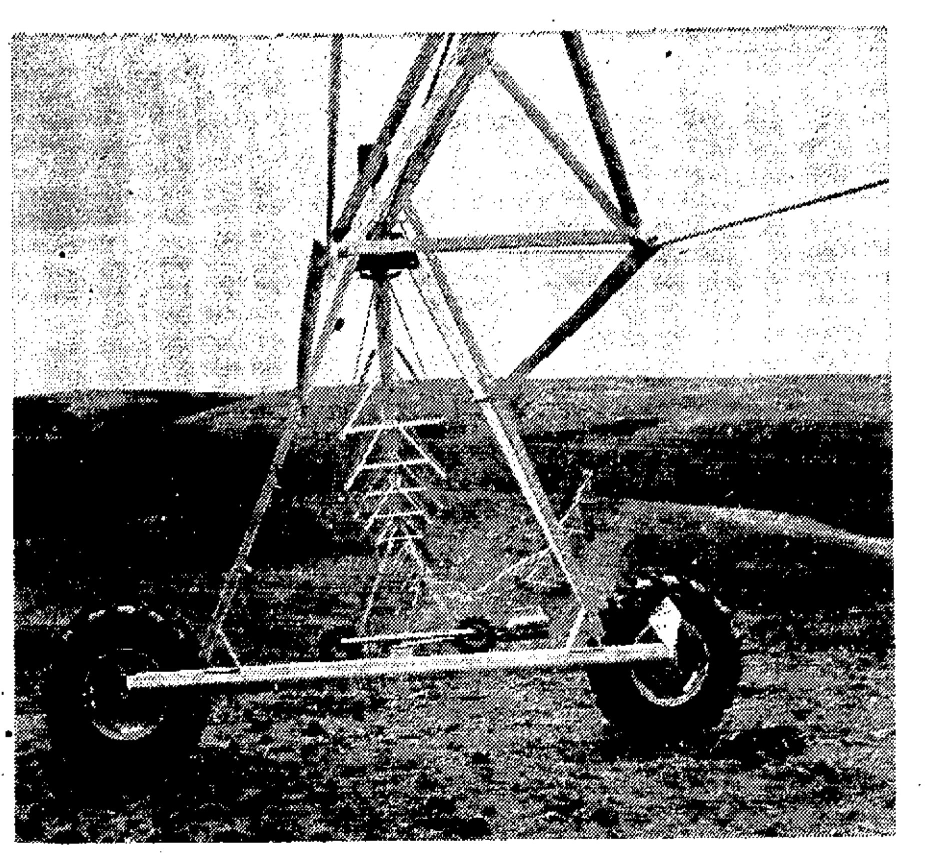
By using a variety of maps, Simpson determine he and the inmate had probably travelled north through Kansas, into Nebraska, possibly into Missouri for a short time, then into Iowa. He determined the point of his release as about two miles east of Sidney.

Leavenworth Police Chief Frank Robertson said his department, Missouri officers, Leavenworth County Sheriff's Department and the FBI were all investigating Fritz' activities after his escape to consider filing charges.

"But there's so many agencies investigating that we're just comparing our notes right now," he said.

Robertson said charges may be filed Thursday when prosecutors have been given all available information.

Authorities are investigating possible theft charges in connection with the theft of a bicycle and green jumpsuit from near the Leavenworth hospital shortly after Fritz' escape. Law enforcement officials say when Fritz was arrested, he was wearing shoes belonging to Simpson.



PIVOT SYSTEM ... could suddenly start moving.

Young Detasselers Warned

"Youngsters detasseling corn should be warned that the center pivot system can make a dangerous leaning post. The towers can move quite unexpectedly when the machines line the towers up automatically," warned Rollin Schnieder, safety specialist at the University of Nebraska.

"We are always seeing new hazards on a farm. This is one you don't think of because people are not normally in a field while the pivot is running," he said.

"Don't drink water from an irrigation system because more farmers are using fertilizer or chemical injection into irrigation water. You never know what might be added to what appears to be nice, clean, cool, well water," he said.

Some cattle were recently killed in western Nebraska when a water supply for cattle, taken off of an irrigation well, was accidently contaminated with fertilizer due to an equipment failure.

Another hazard for youngsters detasseling corn is the use of chemicals from aircraft in fields that are being detasseled.

"This isn't likely to happen but it doesn't hurt to remind people that this is a violation of law as well as dangerous," he said.

Ford Congratulates Nebraska City Youth

Nebraska City (AP) — Mark Thayer, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Foy Thayer of Nebraska City, sent a card to President Ford saying that both he and the President were born on the 14th of July, both were left handed and both were born in Nebraska.

Thayer got an answer Tuesday with the President's signature on it. The letter was written on White House stationery.

The letter said:

"Dear Mark: Thank you for your kind wishes. It was good to learn that July 14th marked a day of celebration for both of us. I am delighted to send you birthday congratulations and I hope the year ahead will bring you ever measure of health and happiness. Sincerely, Gerald R. Ford."

The eighth grader is going to frame the letter and put it in his bedroom.

President Ford was born in Omaha.

Meat Importer Warned Stew Will Have To Halt

Washington, D.C. — The Foreign Trade Board, which governs U.S. foreign trade rules, has issued a notice to a firm that processes frozen beef into frozen stew in Puerto Rico that it will be excluded from shipping meat to the U.S.

The American National Cattlemen's Association and the Nebraska Stockgrowers Association had protested the activities of the company, which imports beef from Australia and New Zealand in frozen carcasses, chips it into frozen chunks and calls it imported stew meat.

This allows the company to circumvent U.S. meat import laws and quotas on imported meat. Cattlemen had charged this is unfair competition.

"They must show cause within 15 days why they should not be excluded from shipping meat into the U.S.," said Jim Huttenmaier, an assistant to Nebraska Rep. Virginia Smith.

Mrs. Smith and 68 of her colleagues, including Nebraska Reps. Charles Thone and John Y. McCollister, had written a letter to President Ford requesting he move to halt the firm's activities.

Huttenmaier said the firm had imported 1.5 million pounds of stew meat in the first six months of 1976, five times the amount of stew meat imported in the same period last year.

"This company's activity had a devastating effect on U.S. cattle prices," he said.

Tourist Traffic Climbs By 10%

Traffic tallies this year show a 10% jump in tourist travel across Nebraska compared with last year, according to state travel Director John Rosenow. He added that he thinks out-of-state and Nebraska vacationers will spend more in the state than the $404 million spent last year.

Nebraska vacation guides stationed at 21 travel information centers across the state have assisted 18.4% more vacationers during the first six months of 1976 than they did during the same period last year.

State tourism officials credit the nation's bicentennial for part of the upsurge in this year's travel.

Iowa Authorities Capture Escaped Prisoner Fritz

SIDNEY, Iowa (AP) — Information provided by a 16-year-old Leavenworth, Kan. youth who was allegedly abducted by a prisoner who escaped Tuesday from a hospital in Leavenworth, Kan., led Iowa authorities to Robert Earl Fritz, 35, Wednesday morning.

Shortly after being taken into custody in Sidney, Iowa, Fritz was rushed to Grape Community Hospital in Hamburg, Iowa for an apparent heart attack. His condition was not immediately determined.

Fritz faces possible kidnapping, theft and escape charges in Kansas. He escaped early Tuesday morning from the Cushing Memorial Hospital in Leavenworth, Kan., after surprising a guard assigned to his room. He was being treated for a heart condition.

He was serving a term of 13-50 years at the Kansas State Penitentiary in Lansing on conviction in Brown County of burglary, theft and rape.

Fritz' incarceration on those charges followed an eight-day reign of terror in Kansas and Nebraska folowing his escape from the Nebraska Penal Complex, Jan. 31, 1974.

The youth Fritz allegedly abducted, Rick Lee Simpson, was intercepted in his pickup truck on Interstate 29, just north of St. Joseph, Mo. by a Missouri Highway Patrol officer early Wednesday morning.

Patrolman George C. Scott said after Fritz reportedly released him unharmed near Sidney, Simpson began driving home. Scott said the youth stopped at a truck stop in Iowa and told several truck drivers he had been robbed and that he was going home and planned to make no more stops along the way.

Scott said the truckers kept track of Simpson as he drove south and using citizen band radio, contacted someone who then contacted the patrol. Eventually, the patrol was able to talk to the truckers following Simpson by use of the radios.

Scott said he intercepted Simpson and asked the youth if he had a problem.

"I didn't know anything about a kidnaping, the first information I had was that he had been robbed," Scott said. "He told me he had been kidnaped by the escapee out of Leavenworth."

Simpson told the patrolman he had been fishing at a farm pond Tuesday on the west edge of Leavenworth. As he returned to his truck just before sunset, the youth noticed a man inside the vehicle trying to hot-wire it. It was then Fritz allegedly abducted Simpson.

"He told me the man had an ax, the regular long-handled woodman's kind, and a hayhook," Scott said. "He said there was something under his belt that was shiny and he fumbled with it occasionally and he believed it was a pistol, although he didn't see it," he added.

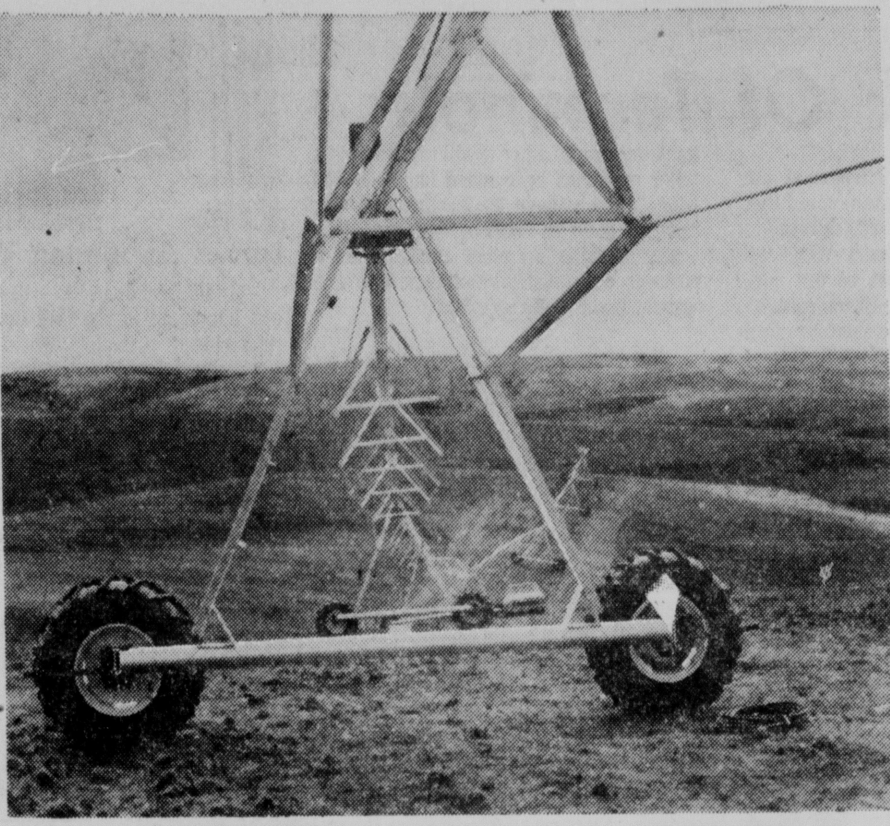
By using a variety of maps, Simpson determine he and the inmate had probably travelled north through Kansas, into Nebraska, possibly into Missouri for a short time, then into Iowa. He determined the point of his release as about two miles east of Sidney.

Leavenworth Police Chief Frank Robertson said his department, Missouri officers, Leavenworth County Sheriff's Department and the FBI were all investigating Fritz' activities after his escape to consider filing charges.

"But there's so many agencies investigating that we're just comparing our notes right now," he said.

Robertson said charges may be filed Thursday when prosecutors have been given all available information.

Authorities are investigating possible theft charges in connection with the theft of a bicycle and green jumpsuit from near the Leavenworth hospital shortly after Fritz' escape. Law enforcement officials say when Fritz was arrested, he was wearing shoes belonging to Simpson.



PIVOT SYSTEM . . . could suddenly start moving.

Young Detasselers Warned

"Youngsters detasseling corn should be warned that the center pivot system can make a dangerous leaning post. The towers can move quite unexpectedly when the machines line the towers up automatically," warned Rollin Schnieder, safety specialist at the University of Nebraska.

"We are always seeing new hazards on a farm. This is one you don't think of because people are not normally in a field while the pivot is running," he said.

"Don't drink water from an irrigation system because more farmers are using fertilizer or chemical injection into irrigation water. You never know what might be added to what appears to be nice, clean, cool, well water," he said.

Some cattle were recently killed in western Nebraska when a water supply for cattle, taken off of an irrigation well, was accidently contaminated with fertilizer due to an equipment failure.

Another hazard for youngsters detasseling corn is the use of chemicals from aircraft in fields that are being detasseled.

"This isn't likely to happen but it doesn't hurt to remind people that this is a violation of law as well as dangerous," he said.

Ford Congratulates Nebraska City Youth

Nebraska City (AP) — Mark Thayer, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Foy Thayer of Nebraska City, sent a card to President Ford saying that both he and the President were born on the 14th of July, both were left handed and both were born in Nebraska.

Thayer got an answer Tuesday with the President's signature on it. The letter was written on White House stationery.

The letter said:

"Dear Mark: Thank you for your kind wishes. It was good to learn that July 14th marked a day of celebration for both of us. I am delighted to send you birthday congratulations and I hope the year ahead will bring you ever measure of health and happiness. Sincerely, Gerald R. Ford."

The eighth grader is going to frame the letter and put it in his bedroom.

President Ford was born in Omaha.

Meat Importer Warned Stew Will Have To Halt

Washington, D.C. — The Foreign Trade Board, which governs U.S. foreign trade rules, has issued a notice to a firm that processes frozen beef into frozen stew in Puerto Rico that it will be excluded from shipping meat to the U.S.

The American National Cattlemen's Association and the Nebraska Stockgrowers Association had protested the activities of the company, which imports beef from Australia and New Zealand in frozen carcasses, chips it into frozen chunks and calls it imported stew meat.

This allows the company to circumvent U.S. meat import laws and quotas on imported meat. Cattlemen had charged this is unfair competition.

"They must show cause within 15 days why they should not be excluded from shipping meat into the U.S.," said Jim Huttenmaier, an assistant to Nebraska Rep. Virginia Smith.

Mrs. Smith and 68 of her colleagues, including Nebraska Reps. Charles Thone and John Y. McCollister, had written a letter to President Ford requesting he move to halt the firm's activities.

Huttenmaier said the firm had imported 1.5 million pounds of stew meat in the first six months of 1976, five times the amount of stew meat imported in the same period last year.

"This company's activity had a devastating effect on U.S. cattle prices," he said.

Tourist Traffic Climbs By 10%

Traffic tallies this year show a 10% jump in tourist travel across Nebraska compared with last year, according to state travel Director John Rosenow. He added that he thinks out-of-state and Nebraska vacationers will spend more in the state than the $404 million spent last year.

Nebraska vacation guides stationed at 21 travel information centers across the state have assisted 18.4% more vacationers during the first six months of 1976 than they did during the same period last year.

State tourism officials credit the nation's bicentennial for part of the upsurge in this year's travel.

Banks Plan Network Of Terminals

By The Associated Press

Nebraska bankers plan a network of electronic bank terminals for the state beginning next spring, a system that one official termed "the absolute frontrunner" in the nation.

Some 300 banks plan to install as many as 400 electronic money transfer terminals in bank lobbies and retail outlets, linking them together to provide "universal" customer access within the state.

Robert Harris of Lincoln, treasurer of the Nebraska Electronic Transfer System (NETS) banking organization, said neighboring Iowa financiers are also working on such a system.

He termed the Cornhusker bankers' system, "the absolute frontrunner, although the Iowa bankers are trying hard to catch us."

NETS executives committed $1.3 million over the next three years for operation of a switching center.

Harris, also executive director of the Nebraska Bankers Association, noted that the $1.3 million was voluntarily assessed to banks signing NETS contracts. While the state has 449 banks, most of the nonmembers are small banks, Harris said.

The 300 banks in NETS account for more than 75% of the personal savings and checking accounts in Nebraska.

Final details of the contract to build, operate and manage Newswitch, the electronic switching center hardware, are being worked out with MICOR, Inc., a Ramada Inn subsidiary.

The NETS executive board also is awaiting a U.S. Justice Department reply to an inquiry made by the Nebraska group.

"We wanted assurances from their antitrust division that the network doesn't violate regulations," Harris explained.

The $1.3 million buys no terminals. Each bank decides whether it will use automatic teller machines or manned units. Omaha banks already have 50 terminals in use, many of them in retail outlets.

Any banking terminal installed in a business place must become part of the system, under Nebraska law.

Although plastic cards will be used by customers, electronic banking is not a credit card system. The NETS system would allow a customer to withdraw and deposit in a checking or savings account, transfer money between accounts, or even move funds from one bank to another.

According to Harris, membership of the so-called Big 6 Banks in Nebraska was crucial to making the system become a reality. The give are Omaha National, U.S. National and First National of Omaha, the National Bank of Commerce and the First National in Lincoln.

Morrow, 2 'Torches' Charged With Arson

Omaha (AP) — Three men, including two who claimed at the outset they were made human torches by their enemies, were charged with first-degree arson Tuesday.

Nebraska Morrow, 49, owner of a vacant house, appeared before Municipal Judge Theodore Carlson. Morrow ran unsuccessfully for the Nebraska Legislature in 1968. Later he served on the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission.

The two men Morrow allegedly offered $150 to burn a house down for insurance purposes were charged in warrants because both have been hospitalized since the Saturday night fire.

They were Lee Truman Stevenson, 29, in satisfactory condition, and James Jackson, 34, in serious condition Wednesday at a hospital. Both men were burned severely.

Police said Stevenson and Jackson first told them they had been abducted at gunpoint and taken to the house by two men who poured gasoline on them and set them afire.

Police and arson investigators said they now discount the story, adding they believe the pair accidentally burned themselves after pouring several gallons of gasoline around the house and then striking a match.

Columbus Puts Sewage Into River

Columbus (AP) — An overloaded sewer has caused Columbus to pump raw sewage into the Loup River.

City Engineer Merlin Lindahl said he would advise the state Environmental Protection Agency of the action, which is against EPA regulations.

The sewage has been pumped into the river during peak periods to halt sewer backup in houses in one section of the city, Lindahl said.

Lindahl and City Administrator Lloyd Castner said the problem was caused by water dumped into a sanitary sewer from large air conditioning units. City ordinances say air conditioning water must be dumped into storm sewers.

Castner and Lindahl said they were trying to locate the source of the air conditioning water.

Construction of a sewer, expected to be completed next summer, will alleviate the problem, Castner said.

Rural Fremont Man Said Killed By His Shotgun

Fremont (AP) — Glen Reimers, 58, of rural Fremont, was found dead of a gunshot wound to the head in his mobile home Tuesday night.

Dodge County Atty. F.A. Gossett III said no foul play was involved. He said Reimers died of a 20-gauge shotgun blast which was self-inflicted and may have been accidental.

Gossett said the man had been dead possibly since July 16. Neighbors had reported Reimers had not been seen, but his car was at the trailer park and the television was on in the mobile home.

He will join the U.S. Park Service at Ganado, Ariz., where he will be curator of the Hubbell Trading Post National Historic Site, the oldest continuously operating trading post in the Southwest.

Wire Thefts Bring Appeal

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) has appealed to persons in rural areas to help stop a string of wire thefts from OPPD distribution lines. OPPD General Manager Ralph W. Shaw said customers in rural areas are being asked to report any unusual activity to sheriff's offices or OPPD. OPPD said about 35,550 feet of No. 2 three-strand copper wire, valued at more than $6,500 has been taken from district lines since June 1.

OSHA Impact Said 'Frustrating'

Washington (AP) — Federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulations have produced "a sense of anger and frustration" among the nation's farmers, Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., said in a prepared statement for hearings on OSHA's impact on agriculture.

Tornado Warnings To Activate Sirens

Omaha (AP) — Omaha's Civil Defense sirens will be activated immediately when the National Weather Service issues a tornado warning, rather than waiting for a verified sighting, Civil Defense officials reported. The signal will be a continuous 10-minute high pitched wail. If a tornado is sighted during that time, the sirens will continue to sound until the storm, and all danger, have passed, Omaha-Douglas County Civil Defense Director William Dean Noyes said.

Blood, Sweat & Tears To Perform

Morrow, 2 'Torches' Charged With Arson

Omaha (AP) — Three men, including two who claimed at the outset they were made human torches by their enemies, were charged with first-degree arson Tuesday.

Nebraska Morrow, 49, owner of a vacant house, appeared before Municipal Judge Theodore Carlson. Morrow ran unsuccessfully for the Nebraska Legislature in 1968. Later he served on the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission.

The two men Morrow allegedly offered $150 to burn a house down for insurance purposes were charged in warrants because both have been hospitalized since the Saturday night fire.

They were Lee Truman Stevenson, 29, in satisfactory condition, and James Jackson, 34, in serious condition Wednesday at a hospital. Both men were burned severely.

Police said Stevenson and Jackson first told them they had been abducted at gunpoint and taken to the house by two men who poured gasoline on them and set them afire.

Police and arson investigators said they now discount the story, adding they believe the pair accidentally burned themselves after pouring several gallons of gasoline around the house and then striking a match.

State Employe Killed In Crash

Cozad (AP) — One person died Wednesday after a semi truck collided with two parked state vehicles about two miles east of here on Interstate 80, Dawson County Atty. Willard Weinhold said.

Identity of the victim, a state employe, was withheld pending notification of relatives.

Columbus Puts Sewage Into River

Columbus (AP) — An overloaded sewer has caused Columbus to pump raw sewage into the Loup River.

City Engineer Merlin Lindahl said he would advise the state Environmental Protection Agency of the action, which is against EPA regulations.

The sewage has been pumped into the river during peak periods to halt sewer backup in houses in one section of the city, Lindahl said.

Lindahl and City Administrator Lloyd Castner said the problem was caused by water dumped into a sanitary sewer from large air conditioning units. City ordinances say air conditioning water must be dumped into storm sewers.

Castner and Lindahl said they were trying to locate the source of the air conditioning water.

Construction of a sewer, expected to be completed next summer, will alleviate the problem, Castner said.

Rural Fremont Man Said Killed By His Shotgun

Fremont (AP) — Glen Reimers, 58, of rural Fremont, was found dead of a gunshot wound to the head in his mobile home Tuesday night.

Dodge County Atty. F.A. Gossett III said no foul play was involved. He said Reimers died of a 20-gauge shotgun blast which was self-inflicted and may have been accidental.

Gossett said the man had been dead possibly since July 16. Neighbors had reported Reimers had not been seen, but his car was at the trailer park and the television was on in the mobile home.

Opinion: Weed Board Part Of County Levy

The State Justice Department said Wednesday a tax levy which supports a noxious weed control fund is part of the maximum county levy, but that supporting a county historical society generally is not

Sheridan County Atty M V Smith of Gordon requested the opinion, written by Assistant Atty. Gen Ralph H Gillan

He said the levy authorized for the weed fund, limited to 50 cents per $100 actual evaluation, "is clearly included" in the county budget, rather than separately for an 'independent taxing entity. Gillan reaffirmed earlier opinions that weed control authority governing board members are civil officers of the county

In concluding the 'levy which supports a county historical society is entirely independent from county fund expenditures authorized by law, Gillan assumed that voters approved that levy to support "purposes of a nonprofit corporation, obviously not a part of county government"

However, "the answer is different" if there was no election, the expenditures support a nonprofit corporation under law authorizing a 1 mill tax and providing a county has a historical body organized under state corporation laws

In that case, county boards may grant such spending authorizations, but not from county funds and denying a county levy increase above the constitutional limit to generate them.

Thousands Of Dollars Lost In Telephone Ruse

No leads have turned up in the investigation of the Tuesday night extortion scheme which left the Richman Gordman store at 48th and Vine short of several thousand dollars, police reported Wednesday

The extortion started when Larry Brown, assistant manager of the store, received a telephone call about 10 10 p m The caller told Brown to put the money from the store safe in a bag and leave it at the intersection of 44th and Vine

Brown's wife and daughter, the caller said, were hostages If Brown failed to deliver the money, the two would be "blown away"

Brown delivered the money, then returned to the store and called his home His family was unaware of the whole plan

Brown called the police, but the money was gone when the investigating officers arrived

Police said the exact amount taken would not be known until the store checked its computer for the day's receipts.

An officer investigating the incident said several persons had been contacted, but not one had been arrested or brought in for questioning. Since extortion is a federal offense, the FBI has also been called in, he said.

Denney Sentences Californian

Omaha (AP) — U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney sentenced Ronald Finch to five years on a narcotics conspiracy charge Wednesday and dismissed a charge that Finch threatened the life of a federal officer.

Denney recommended that Finch, 32, of Laguna Beach, Calif., be given psychiatric treatment and placed in a drug rehabilitation program.

Finch was one of 15 persons indicted by a federal grand jury here on charges alleging an interstate narcotics conspiracy. Thirteen have entered guilty pleas and two have not been arrested.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Thomas Thalken recommended dismissal of the charge that Finch telephoned Jerome H. Gershman, a Drug Enforcement Admistration officer, at his Omaha home last February and threatened to kill him and his wife.

The grand jury alleged the call was made from South Laguna about a week before Finch was arrested on the narcotics charge.

Two of the defendants pleaded guilty to misdemeanor marijuana charges and the others to involvement in a conspiracy to sell LSD, cocaine, marijuana and amphetamines.,

In the misdemeanor cases, Judge Denney earlier sentenced Edward Silva, 45, of Garden Grove, Calif., to one-year probation and gave Neil Stempski, 31, of Brewster, Mass., three years probation.

Denney also earlier gave suspended sentences to Pamela Hussey, 21, Omaha, five years; Gary Montgomery, 20, Omaha, five years, and Robert Tiegs, 26, Lincoln, 2½ years.

Those who pleaded guilty and are waiting sentencing include Jeffrey Mahlber, 21, of Omaha; Christopher Anderson, 21, of Pacific Junction, Iowa; Cheryl Adams, 23, of Anaheim, Calif.; Debra Lee Bell, 22, of Garden Grove, Calif.; Peter Drainville, 24, of Brewster, Mass.; James Bell, 24, of Buena Park, Calif., and Steven Baker, 30, former Omahan now of Garden Grove, Calif.

The indictment said Baker allegedly supplied drugs to the others, who in turn would supply other dealers.

All are free on bond except Baker.

Doctors Free To Set Up Own Offices

Syracuse (AP) — Two physicians have settled a disagreement with two of Syracuse's older doctors and now plan to continue their practice in the town.

Dr. Dean Thomson and Dr. Larry Wilson were released from a noncompetition clause in a contract they had signed with Dr. H. F. Gately and Dr. C. J. Formanack, according to a spokesman at the Medical Center where the four doctors currently work.

The spokesman said Dr. Thomson and Dr. Wilson plan to move from the Medical Center and their new location of practice will be announced soon.

The clause stipulated that when the contract expired, Dr. Thomson and Dr. Wilson would agree not to set up a new practice within five miles of Syracuse unless they stayed at the Medical Center.

Ag Youth Told Food Crisis Not Over Yet

Delegates attending the fifth annual Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute in Lincoln were reminded that the world food crisis, so prominent two years ago, has not gone away.

"There are still hunger problems of serious significance throughout the world," said Bruce Butterfield of the American Meat Institute, "but we must be careful not to fall prey to simplistic solutions."

One of those solutions, Butterfield told the 200 rural youth, is abstention from meat. "Abstention from meat, by itself, does not result in the hungry being fed," he said.

The Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute, sponsored by the State Department of Agriculture, continues through Friday.

Two of the defendants pleaded guilty to misdemeanor marijuana charges and the others to involvement in a conspiracy to sell LSD, cocaine, marijuana and amphetamines.

In the misdemeanor cases, Judge Denney earlier sentenced Edward Silva, 45, of Garden Grove, Calif., to one-year probation and gave Neil Stempski, 31, of Brewster, Mass., three years probation.

Denney also earlier gave suspended sentences to Pamela Hussey, 21, Omaha, five years; Gary Montgomery, 20, Omaha, five years, and Robert Tiegs, 26, Lincoln, 2½ years.

Those who pleaded guilty and are waiting sentencing include Jeffrey Mahlber, 21, of Omaha; Christopher Anderson, 21, of Pacific Junction, Iowa; Cheryl Adams, 23, of Anaheim, Calif.; Debra Lee Bell, 22, of Garden Grove, Calif.; Peter Drainville, 24, of Brewster, Mass.; James Bell, 24, of Buena Park, Calif., and Steven Baker, 30, former Omahan now of Garden Grove, Calif.

The indictment said Baker allegedly supplied drugs to the others, who in turn would supply other dealers.

All are free on bond except Baker.

Doctors Free To Set Up Own Offices

Syracuse (AP) — Two physicians have settled a disagreement with two of Syracuse's older doctors and now plan to continue their practice in the town.

Dr. Dean Thomson and Dr. Larry Wilson were released from a noncompetition clause in a contract they had signed with Dr. H. F. Gately and Dr. C. J. Formanack, according to a spokesman at the Medical Center where the four doctors currently work.

The spokesman said Dr. Thomson and Dr. Wilson plan to move from the Medical Center and their new location of practice will be announced soon.

The clause stipulated that when the contract expired, Dr. Thomson and Dr. Wilson would agree not to set up a new practice within five miles of Syracuse unless they stayed at the Medical Center.

Ag Youth Told Food Crisis Not Over Yet

Delegates attending the fifth annual Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute in Lincoln were reminded that the world food crisis, so prominent two years ago, has not gone away.

"There are still hunger problems of serious significance throughout the world," said Bruce Butterfield of the American Meat Institute, "but we must be careful not to fall prey to simplistic solutions."

One of those solutions, Butterfield told the 200 rural youth, is abstention from meat. "Abstention from meat, by itself, does not result in the hungry being fed," he said.

The Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute, sponsored by the State Department of Agriculture, continues through Friday.

1977 Road Costs Total $101 Million

The Nebraska highway construction and improvement program announced Wednesday totals $101 million for fiscal 1977, according to State Roads Director Tom Doyle.

A companion five-year plan from 1978-82 lists 308 projects statewide at an estimated cost of $522,635,000.

The fiscal 1977 highway program, covering the period that began July 1 and ends June 30, 1977, is "sound," Doyle said. It was developed by the Roads Department in cooperation with the Nebraska Highway Commission.

"Expected state revenues, along with assurance of $50 million of federal aid highway funds, give us a solid base for planning and implementing the program," Doyle said.

He noted that cost estimates are "realistic."

"Our recent bid offerings indicate that highway construction costs have leveled off from the highly inflationary trend of a few years ago, and in some instances have actually declined," he said.

"I am hopeful this statilization will continue, giving the highway user more highway construction and improvement work for his highway tax dollar."

The 1977 program lists 85 projects representing 501.9 miles of highways throughout the seven field districts. It lists 18 Interstate Highway projects.

Interstate allocations will be used for bridge repair and bridge deck protection, rest area construction, signs and sign modifications, traffic signals and lighting.

Doyle said the Roads Department will also begin right-of-way purchases for the segment of recently approved Interstate 580 between Lake and Fort Streets in Omaha.

Projects on the state system total $80 million. Local projects total $21 million. Doyle said funding sources are $50 million federal, $43 million state, and $8 million local (from county and city governments).

The $80 million will be allocated as follows: $51.4 million for priority and urban primary roads, $16.2 million for secondary (rural major collector routes), $5 million for Interstate, $3 million for the safety program (on all highway systems such as rail protection, eliminating roadside obstacles and marking pavement), and $2 million "other."

The latter category includes statewide planning and research studies, traffic signals, roadway lighting, junkyard and advertising control, and special landscaping projects.

The $21 million for the local system will be divided , $7 million for secondary roads, $4.5 million for urban, $3 million for safety, $3 million for "safer off-system" (building, rebuilding or improving any road not on the federal aid system), and $2 million for state-aid bridge and bridge replacement.

Depending upon availability of funds, or if some one-year program projects aren't contracted as scheduled, Doyle said, "We have sufficient built-in flexibility" to substitute them with some five-year projects.

Major fiscal 1977 projects in each of the districts are:

—District II: Douglas County, Hwy. 133 from Junction Hwy. 36 north 2.3 miles, grading, culverts/bridges, surfacing and surface shouldering, $1,737,000.

—District III: Platte County, U.S. 30, viaduct and urban work in Columbus, $3,977,000.

—District IV: York County, U.S. 81 from York south 3.4 miles, grading, culverts/bridges, surfacing and surface shouldering, $2,201,000.

—District V: Scotts Bluff County, Hwy. 71 Scottsbluff to Gering, bridge, $1,151,000.

—District VI: Keya Paha County, Hwy. 12 from Norden east 11 miles, grading, culverts/bridges and surfacing, $1,615,000.

—District VII: Dundy and Hitchcock Counties, U.S. 34 from Stratton west 12.9 miles, grading, culverts/bridges, resurfacing, surface shouldering, $2,788,000.

The Interstate program for FY77 totals an estimated $4,950,000, and for the five-year plan, $31,682,000.

The program total through June 30, $101 million, is down $500,000 compared to projections last year for FY76 projects.

1977 Road Costs Total $101 Million

The Nebraska highway construction and improvement program announced Wednesday totals $101 million for fiscal 1977, according to State Roads Director Tom Doyle.

A companion five-year plan from 1978-82 lists 308 projects statewide at an estimated cost of $522,635,000.

The fiscal 1977 highway program, covering the period that began July 1 and ends June 30, 1977, is "sound," Doyle said. It was developed by the Roads Department in cooperation with the Nebraska Highway Commission.

"Expected state revenues, along with assurance of $50 million of federal aid highway funds, give us a solid base for planning and implementing the program," Doyle said.

"Our recent bid offerings indicate that highway construction costs have leveled off from the highly inflationary trend of a few years ago, and in some instances have actually declined," he said.

"I am hopeful this statilization will continue, giving the highway user more highway construction and improvement work for his highway tax dollar."

The 1977 program lists 85 projects representing 501.9 miles of highways throughout the seven field districts. It lists 18 Interstate Highway projects.

Interstate allocations will be used for bridge repair and bridge deck protection, rest area construction, signs and sign modifications, traffic signals and lighting.

Depending upon availability of funds, or if some one-year program projects aren't contracted as scheduled, Doyle said, "We have sufficient built-in flexibility" to substitute them with some five-year projects.

Major fiscal 1977 projects in each of the districts are:

—District II: Douglas County, Hwy. 133 from Junction Hwy. 36 north 2.3 miles, grading, culverts/bridges, surfacing and surface shouldering, $1,737,000.

—District III: Platte County, U.S. 30, viaduct and urban work in Columbus, $3,977,000.

—District VII: Dundy and Hitchcock Counties, U.S. 34 from Stratton west 12.9 miles, grading, culverts/bridges, resurfacing, surface shouldering, $2,788,000.

The Interstate program for FY77 totals an estimated $4,950,000, and for the five-year plan, $31,682,000.

The program total through June 30, $101 million, is down $500,000 compared to projections last year for FY76 projects.

West Cornhusker To Be Rebuilt

Rebuilding West Cornhusker Hwy. from Interstate 80 to I-180, commonly called Lincoln's "airport road," dominates the list of Lancaster County projects the State Roads Department announced for fiscal 1977.

Work will be contracted in the new District I construction and improvement program, but actual building may not be completed within the fiscal year ending next June 30, Roads Director Tom Doyle explained.

Estimated to cost $2,427,000, the Cornhusker project will rebuild the 1 3-mile stretch from two to four lanes in concrete with a median. It will be lighted.

The deteriorating airport road has long been the source of public complaints about a seamy entryway to Lincoln The project was moved from the five-year plan last year at this time to the start-up category new.

Also included in the 1977 state plan are three more Lancaster County resurfacing projects, estimated to cost $1,475,000.

They include Hwy. 43 in Lancaster and Gage Counties, 15.3 miles from Bennet south for $765,000; Hwy. 79 from Valparaiso south 13.7 miles in Lancaster and Saunders, for $45,000; and $25,000 for a half-mile on the Panama Spur

In District I, comprised of southeast Nebraska counties, the total fiscal 1977 road program is estimated at $13,844,000. For details on other district projects, see the accompanying chart.

The Roads Department also announced its five-year program for fiscal 1978 through fiscal 1982, with District I scheduled plans estimated at $88,281,000. Of that total, $19,867,000 worth of work is pegged for eight Lancaster County roads projects, focusing on Hwy. 2, U.S. 6 and U.S. 77.

Those include Hwy. 2 from 14th to 38th in Lincoln, $4,071,000, and from 38th to Old Cheney Road, $3,387,000. The 2-mile and 1.9-mile projects, respectively, call for grading, culverts/bridges, hard surfacing and surfaced shoulders.

The same improvements are planned in the five-year period for U.S 6 from Lincoln to Waverly, a 4.6-mile stretch to cost $3,893,000.

Four long-range projects focus on U.S. 77. From the junction of Hway. 33 south 12.2 miles, $855,000; from Jct. Hwy. 33 north 3 miles, $1,405,000; from Lincoln south 5 miles, $3,421,000; and Lincoln West Bypass 7 miles, $1,249,000 (preliminary engineering). The costs are at variance with comparative mileage because of different improvements planned

Another Lancaster project in the five-year plan is on 7 miles of Hwy. 79 from Agnew south, $1,586,000.

Interstate construction and improvements scheduled in fiscal 1977 that affect Lancaster County include sign modifications along I-80 from York to Lincoln Air Park, $105,000; and from the Air Park to the Platte River, $127,000.

Natural Gas To Rise, But How Much?

Natural gas prices can go up, the Federal Power Commission ruled Tuesday, but how much higher Lincoln gas bills will go is still up in the air.

The FPC ruling raises the price ceiling on natural gas bought outside the state from 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to $1.42, if the gas was contracted for after Jan. 1, 1975. All natural gas used locally comes from other states.

But although the price ceiling has nearly tripled, a number of factors will keep gas bills from making that dramatic a jump, the American Gas Association estimated. The increase will add about 6% to the bill of the average residential customer, who pays $232.20 per year, according to Cengas figures.

One factor that will keep gas bills from tripling is the amount of gas used locally that was bought after Jan. 1, 1975, also called "new gas."

Howard Sorenson, a spokesman for Northern Natural Gas Co., the area's supplier, said that less than 10% of the gas currently used in Lincoln is new gas. The rest is not subject to the price increase.

Gas suppliers purchase natural gas on long-term contracts, some as long as 20 years, Sorenson said. A few contracts expire every year, and are replaced with new ones As the contracts run out, higher priced gas will make up a larger and larger portion of the gas used by consumers

Before Northern can raise its rates, it must apply for a price increase from the FPC, Sorenson said. Tuesday's order allows suppliers to file for a price hike as early as September if they believe it is necessary. Sorenson said his company has not decided yet if such action would be needed.

The cost of gas at the well, which is the cost affected by the FPC order, is only about 20% of the final cost to the consumer, Sorenson said. The rest of a gas bill goes toward transportation, personnel expenses and capital investment by the pipeline companies, plus similar costs of the local distributor, in Lincoln's case, Cengas.

Collins Wilcox, Cengas district manager, said his company did not know yet what the new gas price ceiling would do to local bills

"We don't anticipate it will be a very big increase," Wilcox said.

Safety Council Panel Debates Motorcycles

A Nebraska Safety Council task force, called to mend the state's battered motorcycle laws, met here Wednesday to map out a multi-month battle plan.

Led by Bob Carroll, executive director of the Safety Council, and task force foster father Jay Kucera, council director of motor vehicle safety, the 16-member group began by taking questions about eventual law changes.

The task force is the product of a state motorcycle safety conference held June 30. The conference decided upgrading of state motorcycle safety would come with better licensing and education laws.

The conference gave the job of formulating the changes to the task force.

Members come from the ranks of motorcycle dealers, government officials and representatives of cycle organizations.

Carroll steered the meeting to reviewing laws and proposals about law changes then took questions to be discussed at the next meeting set for Aug 25.

The committee plans to have law revisions ready by mid-November. There's no target date but the elections could determine who will present the proposals to the Legislature.

The committee plans to emphasize changes in license on-street testing procedures and learner's permit rules. Also to be emphasized is a means of paying for all the changes.

Savage Wants Executive Board Post

Sen. John Savage of Omaha Wednesday said he would like to serve as chairman of the Legislative Council's executive board during what will be "my final two years" in the Unicameral.

The chairman will be elected by the 1977 Legislature when it convenes next January.

Executive board chairman Wally Barnett of Lincoln also may be a candidate for election to the two-year term. Barnett became chairman earlier this month upon the resignation of Eugene Mahoney of Omaha.

Savage noted that he has been a member of the board for the past four years and served as its vice chairman in 1974.

His duties on the board have included space assignment for members of the Legislature and purchase of and distribution of office equipment for senators and their secretaries

"We need someone in this position who understands the legitimate needs of the members of the Legislature and has the courage to back them up," Savage said.

McCollister Unit Plans Seminars

The campaign committee for Republican senatorial nominee John McCollister will hold a series of regional seminars across the state for McCollister county chairmen Aug. 2-12.

"We will make an all-out effort across the state," state campaign coordinator Chuck Hagel said Wednesday.

McCollister, who now represents the 2nd District in the House, will be opposed in November by Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky, the Democratic nominee.

The McCollister seminars will be held in Bridgeport, Ainsworth, North Platte, St. Paul, Minden, Schuyler, Beatrice, Omaha and Wayne.

Chambers Complains Of Tate Absence

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha has asked the Legislature's Judiciary Committee chairman to formally request an explanation from Gov. J. James Exon on the "gross absenteeism" of one of his Parole Board appointees

In a letter to Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, Chambers suggested that it is "appropriate" for the governor to explain the repeated absences of Marshall Tate from board meetings.

"You are familiar with the deliberations which led to expansion of the Parole Board and inclusion of a minority member as a statutory requirement," Chambers wrote Luedtke.

"The statute is being effectively nullified by the governor's appointee."

Tate is the only black member of the board.

Court Referral Director Named

Pamla A. Fry has been named director of the Lancaster County Court Referral Services program, effective Aug. 30. She has been program director for the Lincoln YWCA since November 1974.

The court referral services program allows persons to volunteer for nonprofit or governmental agency work as an alternative to fines or jail terms.

Corner Grocery Stores

STAFF PHOTO BY RANDY HAMPTON

MRS. BELL . . . has store where garage should be.

Mrs. Bell, 71, Doesn't Get Lonely . . .

By JIM CAMDEN
Star Staff Writer

Where most people have a garage, Mrs. Leora Bell, of 6244 Fremont, has a grocery store.

In that section of her Havelock residence is the Home Grocery, better known to the area residents as "The Little Store." The counters hold candy and cupcakes, the shelves carry soup and canned goods. The dairy case is also the meat counter and the vegetable bin.

Mrs. Bell, 71, manages the store by herself. She keeps it open from 6:15 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday through Friday. On Saturdays she does her own shopping, visits family or just relaxes.

About 11 years ago, Mrs. Bell and her husband Bernard bought the house with the attached store. She said it was built in the 1940's and has had several owners. It was once a bakery, her neighbors have told her.

When her husband died several years ago, Mrs. Bell decided to keep the store and run the whole operation herself.

"It keeps me from getting lonely," she said. "People stop by to buy something and we visit for a while."

When she goes on vacation or is gone for the afternoon, she hangs a sign on the door telling when she'll be back. Last week she was gone a little longer than expected and customers were waiting on the store's doorstep.

She said she would like to have someone help her every now and then, but isn't able to hire anyone.

"I can't afford to pay someone as part-time help," she said. "And no one wants to work for just a few hours."

The Home Grocery does a sizable trade among younger folk in the area. Students stop by on their way to school, swimmers come in on their way home from the pool, young bicyclists pedal up the driveway for a snack.

For the smaller tots, Mrs. Bell has a foot stool which helps them reach the counter to count out their nickels and dimes. The youngsters know where the stool is. They pull it out when they come in, push it back when they leave.

She also sells cigarettes and snacks to people on their way to work in the mornings.

Business has been slow this summer, she said. The strike at the nearby Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. has hurt somewhat and a lot of people are gone on vacation.

"This whole neighborhood is deserted on weekends," she said. "Everybody has campers and they go off to the lakes."

But when they come back on Sunday evenings, they often stop by the "Little Store" to get something to fix for supper. Business on Sundays used to be better before the larger markets started staying open on that day, she added.

Fall is a better time for business, she said, and winter is sometimes better still. Mrs. Bell doesn't worry when the heavy snows fall — she's glad. She gets the customers who don't want to tackle the slick roads just for a few grocery items.

"When people can't drive anywhere, they can still walk here," she said.

Mrs. Bell said she has never been robbed, and never had trouble with anyone getting rowdy in the store.

"The kids usually keep each other in line," she said. "They'll tell each other to calm down or go outside."

Having a corner store is not without its difficulties, however. Wholesalers won't deliver her orders, so she has to go pick up much of her stock herself.

"They won't deliver on an order under $1,000," she said. "And that's way more than I usually need in here."

And she can't advertise or put up a large sign in front of the store because of city zoning laws.

But Mrs. Bell said she doesn't really need to advertise, because all the people in the neighborhood know where the "Little Store" is.

MRS. STOLLDORF . . . store always there when you need it.

. . . Stolldorfs Proud Of Their Store

By DEB GRAY
Star Staff Writer

The penny candy counter in the Randolph Dairy Store, 2901 Randolph St., is grimy sometimes, marred by the pressprints of young hands and faces.

That hasn't changed much since owner Mrs. Norma Stolldorf was herself a child, and penny candy "was all I could afford."

In the early evening, neighborhood kids — some from as far away as 30th and W — cluster behind the ice cream counter, chatting away the pre-supper hours.

Mrs. Stolldorf and her husband Merle mold into the chairs at the back of the store . . . in an area that used to be sheds, now remodeled into an office. . living area. Mrs. Stolldorf has returned from a hot day — being "everything from cook to bottle washer" — at the Runza Drive In.

Mrs. Stolldorf has lived on the same block, two houses down from the grocery, for 25 years. She bought the store — which has been there since about 1890, she said — from an elderly man who had owned it for 29 years.

"It was always here when I needed it while my son was growing up," she said.

Her son Dave now manages the store during the day while Mrs. Stolldorf is at one of her other two jobs.

He pours rubber spaceman animals — 15 cents apiece — into a plastic container.

"We're proud of our little store," he said.

Mrs. Stolldorf is among the last of the storekeepers free from urbanization and supermarket chains.

The Randolph Dairy Store is one of about six neighborhood groceries in Lincoln. Most customers pick up isolated items, spending the bulk of their food budget at the supermarkets. But whatever it lacks in selection, the store makes up for in personality.

To her customers, Mrs. Stolldorf is everything from banker to postman.

"It's hard for many of the elderly people in the neighborhood to get to town to write a check. It's easier if they write a check to me. And college . . . where are they going to get money?"

She said the store has been "tremendously fortunate," with few writing bad checks. But beware the ones that do: "I go after them tooth and toenail."

Mrs. Stolldorf said the store is "no big money maker." A lot is reinvested into the store.

There's a couple of desks and TVs in the back living area; also framed photographs from her son's wedding, a coffee pot, stove . . . and a bed for Heidi, a part-collie, part-German shepherd who guards the store at night.

Before Mrs. Stolldorf's — and Heidi's arrival — the store had been vandalized about once a week.

"The Department of Health doesn't like it, but they can get a foot patrol down here if they don't," she said.

Mrs. Stolldorf said there are no rigid 8-5 hours. Although she usually leaves at midnight, there's always emergencies: a neighbor, banging on her door at 2 a.m., needing aspirin; a mother who needs formula for her baby.

"The police get used to me running up and down the street in a housecoat," she said.

She also has a pair of teakwood lamps which a Georgia couple exchanged for groceries. The husband and wife, who ran out of gas in front of the store, had 14 cents between them. When they returned to Georgia, they sent another gift: a curved knife in a carved teakwood case — a gift the husband bought in Taiwan while in the military.

Although taxes — not the supermarket chains — are "going to ruin us," Mrs. Stolldorf said the neighborhood grocery will not die.

"As long as there are nuts like me to keep them going," she said, "they will always be around."

Mom Afraid Daughter Defrauding Social Security

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is married, has four children and was separated from her husband when she went to live with a divorced man. (I'll call him John.). She lived with him for 14 months, then he was killed.

After John died, my daughter claimed that she was his widow, and now she is receiving his Social Security, which amounts to a lot of money.

I am worried sick about this. Doesn't the Social Security Office check these claims? And if they do, and it becomes known that she was never married to John, what can they do to her?

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: The Social Security Office requires the birth certificates of all the children if the woman is claiming benefits for them, plus a marriage certificate to prove that she is indeed married to the man. Your daughter must have forged these documents.

If the S.S. office discovers a possible fraud, they turn it over to the District Attorney's office for investigation and possible prosecution. If found guilty, the accused must repay all the money and possibly face a fine and/or imprisonment.

3 Counties Not Supporting Health Group

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

The newly organized Southeast Nebraska Health Systems Agency (SeNHSA) is not receiving financial cooperation from all its member counties, SeNHSA board members learned Wednesday night.

Noting that the health planning organization is seeking $22,293 in local matching funds for the 1976-77 year, board Chariman Earl Witthoff said three of the 17 counties in the area are refusing to contribute.

The three counties are Jefferson, Cass and Pawnee.

Thus far, pledges of funds amounting to $15,652 have been received from Butler, Gage, Lancaster, Otoe, Polk, Thayer and York Counties, and the City of Lincoln, Witthoff said.

"We have not, as yet, heard from all the counties," he added.

Responding to the news of the three counties' refusal to contribute, board member and Lancaster County Commissioner Bruce Hamilton said, "We (Lancaster County) want to contribute our share . . . but everyone else ought to contribute their share as well."

And if many counties don't contribute next year, he continued, Lancaster County may be reluctant to make another financial committment to the agency.

Hamilton then suggested taking "reprisals" against those counties who don't contribute.

However, Witthoff — taking a more moderate stand which Hamilton later agreed with — said that if some counties don't contribute, the fault lies with the SeNHSA board, staff and himself.

"If they think they're getting something for their money, they will contribute," Witthoff said. "We're going to have to get our board members to work on the county commissioners."

SeNHSA has received a base grant of $145,000 from the federal government for the current year. In addition, local funds raised by the agency will be matched by the federal government to the tune of 40 cents on the dollar.

In other action, the board voted to table until next month consideration of a change in procedures followed during project reviews.

Under current procedures, a task force is assigned to study certain projects which are proposed by health care groups.

The task force then comes back to the full board with a recommendation to approve or disapprove the project.

A proposed change in that procedure would eliminate the recommendation phase of the task force's obligation, making it responsible only for presenting the pros and cons of an issue to the board for its vote.

Nebraskan Compacted With Garbage

Amarillo, Tex. (AP) — A transient from Nebraska who was killed when the garbage dumpster in which he was sleeping was unloaded into a sanitation truck was identified Wednesday as Russell Ray Krantz.

Potter County officials said Krantz, 44, of Sterling, Neb., arrived in this Texas Panhandle city about three weeks ago.

Officials said Krantz apparently fell asleep in a dumpster in the downtown area. A truck picked up the container and dumped its contents into the back of the truck and then compressed the garbage containing Krantz' body.

His body was discovered Tuesday at a landfill outside of Amarillo as the first of the day's dumpings were being spread by earth moving vehicles.

Malone's 'Dream' Shown On Paper

By BOB REEVES
Star Staff Writer

Members of the Malone Center Board Wednesday looked at pictures of a dream which is struggling to come true.

Ted B. Wright of the University of Nebraska College of Architecture's community design center presented preliminary plans for a new building, which Malone hopes to build on a site immediately north of the present center.

Students helped design the proposed 63,464-square-foot structure which would house present and expanded programs of the center. Estimated cost is $2.5 million, Wright said.

Wright said the building would include meeting rooms, gymnasium, swimming pool and sunbathing area, an arts and crafts room and cultural library, a day-care center, lounge for the elderly, auto , metal and wood shops for community-run repair services, offices and a courtyard.

Because of modular planning, Wright said it could be built in stages or some elements eliminated altogether, without spoiling the aesthetic effect.

"This building has been our dream for the past five to seven years," board president Lenore Letcher said. "Let's make it a reality."

The board has started toward that goal with a "quasi-endowment fund" of $14,910.

"It won't happen instantly," said buildings and grounds chairman Wright Robinson. He discussed possible fund-raising programs.

In other business, the board voted to ask Director Asuquo P. Umoren to send a letter to Mayor Helen Boosalis and members of the City Council protesting the elimination of the social work function from the Commission on Aging's contract with the center.

Umoren said that the center will no longer provide transportation for the commission's program if the social work position at the center is cut from the budget.

Suit Seeks To Block Wood School Addition

Residents of School District 107 west of Lincoln filed suit in Lancaster District Court Wednesday seeking to block construction of an addition to the school building.

The suit asks the court to issue a temporary and permanent restraining order keeping the school district from building a wooden building instead of a metal building.

Three members of the district, located near the Lincoln Air Park West exit on West O St., filed the suit against school board members Dick Miles, Marla Bolhman, Jerry Johnson and Fran Coleman.

The plaintiffs charged that in April, school district residents approved a bond issue authorizing the expenditure of $50,000 to construct a metal building. The new building was to house seventh and eighth grade students who now are attending Lincoln Public Schools.

However, the school board issued a contract to Coleman to build a wood addition to the school house, providing for 825 square feet of space, instead of the 3,000-square foot addition approved by the voters.

Members of the school district claim that the wooden addition won't house the expected enrollment of the district without overcrowding.

The suit was filed by Audrey Gilliam, Robert Gilliam and David Zeilinger.

School District 107 serves elementary grades and has one teacher and one fulltime aide for children in kindergarten through fifth grade, according to the county superintendent of schools office.

Planners OK Change At Highlands North

Local planners Wednesday endorsed changes in the Highlands North development which were designed to move residential areas farther away from the Lincoln Municipal Airport.

The Airport Authority previously has voiced concerns that the flight patterns of jets taking off and landing on one of the runways would interfere with people living in the proposed subdivision.

The developers have agreed to grant the authority noise easements to protect the agency from potential lawsuits after people move into the houses in the Highlands.

Attorney Gordon Miles from Omaha told the City-County Planning Commission Wednesday that the developers agreed to all the conditions imposed by various city departments.

The subdivision is located south of Hwy. 34 and north of Interstate 80. Plans call for the area to be divided into 1,554 single family lots, four multiple family areas, two parks, a school site, office park, golf course and commercial and industrial areas.

In other business the commission:

Changes of Zone

— Approved planning director's report to amend zoning ordinance dealing with height restrictions near the State Capitol Building.

— Denied application of Alice Dittman for Cornhusker Bank, from B Two Family to I Commercial, on north side of Dudley, 100 feet east of 27th St.

Plats

— Approved final plat of Hallcrest Add., near Adams and east of 70th St.

Vacations

— Approved vacation of east 108 feet of east-west alley of Blk. 3, Hulls South Add., between A and Garfield from 2nd to 3rd.

— Approved vacation of portion of Smith between 1st and 2nd in Cheney.

State Unit's 1st Priority Crisis Aid

The woman in crisis will be the first priority of the Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women during the 1977-78 year, the commission's executive board decided Wednesday.

Programs to help abused women, woman alcoholics and sexual assault victims will be provided to deal with this top priority.

The board cited public information and education, legislation, the female offender and continuation of women's employment opportunities as other priorities.

It was announced at the meeting that the commission has received a $20,000 grant from the Nebraska Committee on the Humanities. The grant will be used to produce educational television shows on woman and her role in society.

The board also discussed a series of public service television spots that the commission will be purchasing. The 60-second tips for women seeking employment are scheduled to be shown this fall.

The board will meet again Aug. 11. The quarterly meeting for the entire commission will be Sept. 18 at the Youth Development Center in Geneva.

Leeds To Cite U.S. Composer

LEEDS, England (AP) — Aaron Copland, the 76-year-old American composer, will receive an honorary doctorate of music at Leeds University on Oct. 18, the university announced Wednesday.

Copland will be in Leeds at the time to conduct the BBC Symphony Orchestra in a Bicentennial concert as part of the annual Leeds Musical Festival.

Opening lead — two of spades.

The most interesting deals are those where the outcome depends on how well each side plays its cards. This is especially true when one side seems destined to lose the battle, but manages somehow to turn the tide.

Consider this deal, which features high-level play on both sides. South got to five hearts and West led a spade. East won and played another spade, which declarer ruffed.

Placing East with the king of clubs, which seemed likely on the bidding, South immediately set his sights on an endplay in order to save one of his two club losers.

He led the nine of hearts to the jack, ruffed dummy's last spade, led a diamond to the ace, ruffed a diamond, then entered dummy with a trump and ruffed another diamond.

Having eliminated spades and diamonds from both hands, South now led a low club to dummy. He planned to play the eight after West followed low, and so endplay East. East would win and be forced to return a club or yield a ruff and discard. Either way, South would make the contract.

But West, having observed declarer's preparations for an endplay, was all set when South led a low club at trick nine. Instead of woodenly following low, he played the ten, acting very much like a man who had J-10-x.

This play gave South food for thought. He was reluctant to play the queen because he thought East would win with the king and return a club to West's (presumed) jack. So declarer followed low from dummy and played the eight on the low club continuation, expecting to trap East's king.

But East produced the jack and South went down one as a result of West's highly imaginative defense.

Brownville Music Contest Off Again

By The Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Brownville — This old river town's on-again, off-again country music and fiddlers' contest is off once again.

Officially and for sure this time. There will be no music, no chatauqua, no nothing here the much-publicized weekend of Aug. 27-29.

After 90 minutes of heated discussion at a special village board meeting Wednesday, Brownville Hisotrical Society directors voted 5-3 fo scrap plans for any type celebration that particular weekend. Quickly concurring was a four-member village board which appeared ready to turn thumbs down anyway.

The special meeting was called to ease tensions between Brownville's permanent residents and the Historical Society, sponsors of the annual music festival. But opposition to the event was so overwhelming that the society backed off from a so-called "Chatauqua-on-the-river" it had announced only three days ago.

The society had already called off the music festival under that designation.

Local opponents, sometimes shouting in the sweltering old town hall, argued the event by whatever name would attract the same "undesirable elements" as last year.

A crowd of at least 12,000 — including a preponderance of "hippie-types" — overtaxed the facilities last year.

But admissions to the music contest netted the society more than $8,000. The event has become the financial mainstay for historical undertakings in the town.

It was finally agreed that ceremonies for the Merriwether Lewis, the Corps of Engineers riverboat which is to become a Missouri River museum, will be held Sept. 12 in conjunction with the town's annual tour of homes. But there will be nothing smacking of a music contest.

Tom Palmerton, society president, and noted artist-sculptor who lives in Brownville, insisted the announced chatauqua would not have drawn the crowds of last year. It had been proposed to stage the music contest itself aboard the Belle of Brownville, a local excursion boat.

Charles Hahn, of Auburn, Nemaha County attorney whose wife is music contest chairman, said in his opinion there would be no legal hitches to staging the event in that manner. A traditional chatauqua was planned for Brownville's state recreation area and adjoining private -roperty.

The village zoning administrator, who is also a society board member, Jim Garber, agreed no city permit would be required because of a grandfather clause. But the town board apparently felt it still had the authority to issue or deny a permit.

The society had already been refused a permit under the contest's original name. The group also had been turned down on other locations by the Nemaha County Board and a county board across the river in Missouri.

Beatrice Woman Said Swindled By Painters

Beatrice (UPI) — An elderly Beatrice woman who agreed to have improvements made to her home at the insistence of four repairmen was cheated out of $1,650, police said Wednesday.

Police Capt. Elvin Waltke said the four men worked about four hours and charged the 84-year-old woman $2,200. She said she was unable to pay and the repairmen settled for $1,650, which she paid by check.

Waltke said one man, who police said is from Carthage, Mo., was arrested when he went back to collect the full $2,200 again, saying the first check was no good.

Police said he was being held for giving false information to police officers. Other charges were expected to be filed, and police sought three other men involved in the swindle.

Waltke said the men did a "sloppy job" of painting a living room ceiling and partial painting of rain guttering on the house.

FBI records indicate a list of 50 similar swindle operations in Nebraska.

LBE Co. has reported net earnings of $10,849 for the first six months of 1976, up from a deficit of $26,943 for the same period in 1975.

The parent company of Lincoln Bank East also reported net earnings per share of $.09 for the reporting period, compared to a loss of $.21 per share for the same period last year.

It was incorrectly reported in the Wednesday Star that both the total net earnings and net earnings per share had declined for the first six months of 1976.

Although LBE Co. and NBC Co. are affiliate bank holding companies, the two are completely separate.

Brownville Music Contest Off Again

By The Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Brownville — This old river town's on-again, off-again country music and fiddlers' contest is off once again.

Officially and for sure this time. There will be no music, no chatauqua, no nothing here the much-publicized weekend of Aug. 27-29.

After 90 minutes of heated discussion at a special village board meeting Wednesday, Brownville Hisotrical Society directors voted 5-3 to scrap plans for any type celebration that particular weekend. Quickly concurring was a four-member village board which appeared ready to turn thumbs down anyway.

The special meeting was called to ease tensions between Brownville's permanent residents and the Historical Society, sponsors of the annual music festival. But opposition to the event was so overwhelming that the society backed off from a so-called "Chatauqua-on-the-river" it had announced only three days ago.

The society had already called off the music festival under that designation.

Local opponents, sometimes shouting in the sweltering old town hall, argued the event by whatever name would attract the same "undesirable elements" as last year.

A crowd of at least 12,000 — including a preponderance of "hippie-types" — overtaxed the facilities last year.

But admissions to the music contest netted the society more than $8,000. The event has become the financial mainstay for historical undertakings in the town.

It was finally agreed that ceremonies for the Merriwether Lewis, the Corps of Engineers riverboat which is to become a Missouri River museum, will be held Sept. 12 in conjunction with the town's annual tour of homes. But there will be nothing smacking of a music contest.

Tom Palmerton, society president, and noted artist-sculptor who lives in Brownville, insisted the announced chatauqua would not have drawn the crowds of last year. It had been proposed to stage the music contest itself aboard the Belle of Brownville, a local excursion boat.

Charles Hahn, of Auburn, Nemaha County attorney whose wife is music contest chairman, said in his opinion there would be no legal hitches to staging the event in that manner. A traditional chatauqua was planned for Brownville's state recreation area and adjoining private -roperty.

The village zoning administrator, who is also a society board member, Jim Garber, agreed no city permit would be required because of a grandfather clause. But the town board apparently felt it still had the authority to issue or deny a permit.

The society had already been refused a permit under the contest's original name. The group also had been turned down on other locations by the Nemaha County Board and a county board across the river in Missouri.

Beatrice Woman Said Swindled By Painters

Beatrice (UPI) — An elderly Beatrice woman who agreed to have improvements made to her home at the insistence of four repairmen was cheated out of $1,650, police said Wednesday.

Police Capt. Elvin Waltke said the four men worked about four hours and charged the 84-year-old woman $2,200. She said she was unable to pay and the repairmen settled for $1,650, which she paid by check.

Waltke said one man, who police said is from Carthage, Mo., was arrested when he went back to collect the full $2,200 again, saying the first check was no good.

Police said he was being held for giving false information to police officers. Other charges were expected to be filed, and police sought three other men involved in the swindle.

Waltke said the men did a "sloppy job" of painting a living room ceiling and partial painting of rain guttering on the house.

FBI records indicate a list of 50 similar swindle operations in Nebraska.

LBE Reports $10,849 Profit For 6 Months

LBE Co. has reported net earnings of $10,849 for the first six months of 1976, up from a deficit of $26,943 for the same period in 1975.

The parent company of Lincoln Bank East also reported net earnings per share of $.09 for the reporting period, compared to a loss of $.21 per share for the same period last year.

It was incorrectly reported in the Wednesday Star that both the total net earnings and net earnings per share had declined for the first six months of 1976.

NBC Co. earnings were also reported in the Wednesday story. NBC Co., a one-bank holding company, owns the National Bank of Commerce, NBC Leasing Co., NBC Credit Insurance Agency, and Mutual Savings Co., all in Lincoln, and Nebraska Savings Co. of Scottsbluff.

Although LBE Co. and NBC Co. are affiliate bank holding companies, the two are completely separate.

Conviction For Receiving Stolen Property Is Upheld

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A divided Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday upheld the conviction of an Alliance area man for receiving stolen property

Five justices of the court said the man's fourth amendment rights were not violated when property was seized by law enforcement officials who did not have a search warrant

However, Justice Hale McCown, in a dissenting opinion, said the decision would have pleased England's King George the III "But to many Americans, that concept of individual rights is as unacceptable now as it was 200 years ago," he wrote

The case involved the October, 1974, search of a shed on land owned by Frank Krejci in Sheridan County Krejci leased some land to Joe Schrader Stolen property from an irrigation company and a stolen fuel tank were found in a shed sitting on that leased land

Schrader was convicted of receiving that stolen property

Law enforcement officers were called to the scene after the land's owner, Krejci, asked police to remove the items. Krejci told the Box Butte County sheriff and a State Patrol investigator that "bunch of stuff down there in the shed" didn't belong to him and "I want you to get it out of here " They did

The majority of the court said the seizure of the property was legal because the officers took the property solely to comply with Krejci's request Secondly, the court said Schrader's lease was for the "grass only" and not the shed, so the seizure was not directed at the defendant

The majority of the court said there was no search within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment because the property was within "plain view" of the officers

"Open fields are not within the protection of the Fourth Amendment," the justices said, citing previous cases

However, Justice McCown disagreed and quoted a U S Supreme Court decision which said, "The Fourth Amendment protects people, not places "

Under the majority's opinion, McCown said, the Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable seizures "disappear without a trace in a maze of judicial interpretation "

"The inside of a rented shed becomes an 'open field' and all expectations of privacy vanish, because the only entrance to the shed is protected by barbed wire rather than a door," he wrote

Also dissenting in the case was Justice Leslie Boslaugh who wrote that there was no warrant and no probable cause for the seizure of the irrigation equipment and fuel tank in the farm shed

The majority opinion was agreed to by Justices Paul White, Harry Spencer, Donald Broadeky, John Newton and Lawrence Clinton

The defendant Schrader's appeal was first heard by a division of the State Supreme Court That meant that some district court judges formed a panel with some of the Supreme Court judges to decide on the appeal However, the entire court decided to rehear the case after reviewing the other decision That panel's decision wasn't revealed

$76,000 Damages Award To Ex-Wrestler Upheld

A $76,000 award to a former, University of Nebraska-Omaha wrestler who was permanently injured in a traffic accident was not excessive, the State Supreme Court said Wednesday

Melvin J Washington was 24 at the time of the April 11, 1972, accident which caused extensive back injuries

A Douglas County District Court jury ordered American Community Stores Corp to pay $76,000 in damages Washington claimed he would lose a substantial amount of money because he no longer could wrestle or coach wrestling

The Supreme Court noted that Washington was considered the "best wrestler in the history of UNO" with a collegiate record of 103 wins and only four losses Prior to the accident Washington said he intended to try out for the 1972 U S Olympic team

American Community Stores Corp didn t deny the extent of the athlete's injuries, but argued that the question of Washington's potential earning capacity should not have been submitted to a jury for determination

The corporation contended that there was no evidence submitted of Washington's potential earnings from wrestling

The Nebraska Supreme Court rejected that argument

"It is settled law in Nebraska that loss of earning capacity, as distinct from loss of wages, salary, or earnings, is a separate element of damage," the court said

The high court said proof of an actual loss of earnings isn't essential to recover monetary damages

In two other decisions Wednesday, the Supreme Court

— reduced the Douglas County District Court s sentence of James Foutch for assaulting a child from a 3 9 year prison term to a 1 3 year term for kicking a four year old boy The court said the sentence was excessive

— affirmed the Sarpy County District Court s decision in a case involving Bill R Hull and Clinton Bahensky in a contract dispute

Lahners Still Investigating Allegations Against Smith

Whether or not charges will be filed against the former director of the state surplus property division "is still under investigation," Lancaster County Atty. Ron Lahners said Wednesday.

David A. Smith, of 2300 S. 59th, was fired as division director in mid-May for what his superiors alleged were violations of state policy regarding disposal of state surplus property.

A special state audit has revealed carelessness and illegal practices in the division during the time Smith headed it, even after a December performance audit recommended corrective actions for some of the same problems.

Although the new audit disclosed numerous minor discrepancies in accounting methods, violations of both Nebraska agency policy and the State Constitution, and missing cash and property, the amounts were small relative to inventory and items in question tracked down by the review.

The audit neither indicated nor assigned blame to any individual; rather it treated the matter as conditions discovered in the division as a whole.

Lahners said that "probably within the next week to 10 days," he will assemble a conference of his own legal staff with state auditors and Nebraska State Patrol investigators, who performed their own probe.

"After all the material is reviewed, then a determination will be made" regarding any formal charges or finding of no wrongdoing based on the evidence gathered.

Although he wouldn't predict when that decision will be made, Lahners did note that "it won't take long to arrive at a conclusion" following the conference.

Yankee Hill Cemetery Unit To Finish Bylaws Aug. 9

The Yankee Hill Cemetery Association, formed out of concern for the upkeep of the historic site, is another step closer to being official.

According to Wayne Giebelhaus, the prime mover in the association, the group will meet Aug. 9 to finalize bylaws and implement a plan for the perpetual care of the cemetery.

Giebelhaus said that official records of the cemetery, kept current by Mrs. Bion Dill after the death of her husband, who was Yankee Hill caretaker, have been copied and the group is now up to date on the history of the cemetery which recorded its first burial years before Nebraska became a state.

The memorial fund for perpetual care has been bolstered by $250 in donations from friends and relatives of many who are buried in the cemetery, he added. All persons interested in the cemetery are urged to attend the 7:30 p.m. meeting at the American Forward Association at 8th and D Sts., Giebelhaus said.

Lincoln Bank South Earnings Rise 10.5%

Lincoln Bank South has announced that earnings for the first six months of 1976 totaled $108,050, an increase of 10.5% in net income after taxes over the same period last year. Earnings per share increased 10.3% to 43 cent from 39 cents. Total bank assets were $12,766,906 compared with $10,959,408 in June 1975.

Texas Lawmen Seek Man Held In DWI Case

Rushville (AP) — The Sheridan County sheriff's office said a man arrested and charged with drunk driving Tuesday night was wanted in Texas on warrants filed in connection with two murders.

Officers said they picked up Benito Zemore, 32, of Minard, Tex., northwest of Hay Springs after residents in the area reported suspicious actions by two men in a pickup truck.

The name of Zemore's companion was withheld.

Deputies said a check through the national crime computer found that Zenore was wanted in connection with two warrants issued June 1 at Wichita Falls, Tex.

Sheridan County officials said they knew no details about the Texas case.

They said Zemore waived extradition and was to be picked up by Texas authorities.

Mahoney To Prove Critics Wrong

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gene Mahoney is determined to prove that his critics are wrong.

The veteran senator's appointment as director of the Game and Parks Commission was preceded and accompanied by a flurry of criticism that he was either unqualified for the job or that he won it through political maneuvering and influence.

Mahoney describes the barrage as "brutal" and unfair.

"It seemed that because of my past accomplishments I was being prosecuted, tried and sentenced," he said in an interview in his third floor office at the commission's headquarters in Lincoln.

His lifetime activities as a sportsman and his legislative experience as an administrator (he was chairman of the Unicameral's governing body, the Legislative Council executive board) qualify him for his new post, Mahoney said.

The 48-year-old Omahan sees his primary duty as providing the game and parks unit with sufficient resources to do its job well.

"The name of the game is funding," Mahoney said.

"We're going to try to hold our own on the budget, and eke out a little more for the areas that need it most.

"I don't expect to be able to perform any miracles, but we'll try. The commission has many facilities which it has never been able to fund adequately."

Gene Mahoney

Mahoney said the agency is blessed with "a most qualified staff," and he will rely on the professionals for advice and counsel and "administer the department in a fair manner."

As for criticism that Gov. J. James Exon helped land him the commission post as a reward for political favors, Mahoney flatly denies it.

The fact is that "the governor urged me not to take it," he said. Often, Mahoney noted, he was the only senator to speak on the floor of the Legislature in defense of Exon after the governor had been shelled by other lawmakers. Now there may be no defense.

And the fact is, Mahoney said, that once he applied for the director's job, game and parks commissioners pursued him, rather than vice versa.

"I didn't have to hound them," he said.

Mahoney is in his first full week on the new job, and he has already taken two personal vows.

"I will not be a desk-bound director," he said. "I will be out in the field in a jump suit, out on the scene.

"And I will work very closely with the State Historical Society so that together we can do the best job of explaining the great historical areas we have in this state."

Looking back, Mahoney says he made the decision to resign from the Legislature to take the new post only after "a great deal of anguish."

"But I think there is a time to leave, and you ought to leave while you're on top. You have to know when to leave before you get beat or you get stale.

"Some men in the Legislature never get stale, but I was beginning to believe I had reached the time to move on to a new challenge."

Getting beaten was not a concern. "I was assured of reelection with 72% of the primary vote," Mahoney noted.

The former Omaha policeman considers Terry Carpenter, Jules Burbach and the late George Gerdes to have been his "great teachers" in the Unicameral, "the greatest a person could have."

His own proudest achievements include sponsorship of the constitutional amendment which paved the way for enactment of homestead tax exemptions for the elderly and of bills which wrote the state's first minimum wage law, gave public employes negotiation rights and handed teachers their own professional negotiation law.

Closer to home, he sponsored a bill creating a merit system for Douglas County employes, won approval for a new $5-million technical community college campus in his South Omaha legislative district and helped guide to enactment a compromise bill clearing the way for construction of a downtown education center for the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Mahoney says "it's hard to toot your own horn," but those are achievements he can claim after 15 years in the Legislature.

Now he will take on a new assignment.

"People are starved for outdoor recreation, and they want to participate in it without a great deal of cost," Mahoney said.

"Our duty is to try to see that the little families in Nebraska get a chance to enjoy outdoor recreation facilities."

Former Champ In Lead

By VIRGIL PARKER

Bellevue — Omaha's Tom Sieckmann, who won both the Nebraska Amateur match and medal play tournaments in 1974 but skipped the more prestigious medal event last year in favor of the national Trans-Miss, fired a 67 over the Capehart Course at Offutt Air Force Base here Wednesday to take a commanding first-round lead.

Sieckmann's five-under-par effort staked the Oklahoma State junior to a three-shot edge over ex-Nebraska basketball star Sam Martin.

The Pawnee City dentist's two-under 70 gave him a one-stroke edge over five others, a group which included defending champion Mike Klein of Scottsbluff and 1972 titlist Dan Bahensky of Lincoln.

Martin, a cool hand when on the hoop court for the Huskers, displayed the same skills on the links until the final two holes. He eagled the par five 12th and was four-under until finishing bogey-bogey on Nos. 17 and 18.

Sieckmann, who battled into the finals of the match play tournament earlier this summer before bowing to Omaha's Tom Olson, called his opening round "embarrassingly easy.

"I know it will get a lot tougher the last two days after the field is cut," Sieckmann noted, "but they had the tee markers so far up that the course — the toughest in the state under normal conditions — played like it was a 70 par."

Sieckmann pointed to the fact that he hit two five par greens with a driver and an eight-iron and a driver and a wedge and was putting for eagles.

"The other five pars played fairly honest," Sieckmann added, "but overall I was a little disappointed. This is supposed to be a championship tournament. If they were to keep the tees up like that all week it would turn into a putting contest."

Sieckmann recorded five birdies and was without a bogey.

"I hit 16 greens, so only was in danger of bogey twice," he recalled. "In each case I was able to get the ball within six feet and make the par putts."

Klein, who was a junior at Houston this year (they were third in the NCAA to winner Oklahoma State and runnerup BYU), called his round "routine."

"I was mainly concerned about ot getting a poor start. I played it a little safe. At least I'm in a challenging position at 71. That's better than getting reckless the first day and trying to fight back from a 76. This tournament is going to be won the last two days after they stretch out the course."

Like Sieckmann, Klein had five birdies — one on a 20-foot downhill putt when "I was just trying to get it close" — but slipped to four bogeys. Three times he missed the green in regulation and once suffered from a three-putt green.

Bahensky, a University of Nebraska law student, was also five under with an eagle and three birdies, but like Klein, lost most of his advantage with four bogeys.

"I could'nt buy a putt except for the 20-footer for the eagle on No. 17," Bahensky noted.

Bahensky drove the 318-yard hole with the aid of a trailing wind and canned the putt for the eagle.

Recently crowned Lincoln city champ Mike Hughett settled for a three-over 75, while state match play winner Olson slipped to a 77. Rennie Sasse, runner-up to Hughett for Lincoln city honors, also had his trouble and will have difficulty making the cut after an opening-round 79.

After the entire field of 150 plays the second 18 Thursday, the surviving top 54 golfers will complete the tourney with final rounds on Friday and Saturday.

Dean Ward's pit crew pushes his super stocker into the pit area after Ward won his heat race to make adjustments. But the adjustments didn't last, as Ward was forced to drop out of the feature race of the Tri-City Challenge Match Wednesday at Midwest Speedway. Bill Martin of Omaha won the 35-lap main event.

Martin Holds On For Challenge Win

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

One more lap and Bill Martin might have finished tenth instead of winning the Tri-City Challenge series race Wednesday night before 2,000 fans at Midwest Speedway.

Martin, who won last yar's Challenge series for super stock cars, jumped into the lead from his position in the front row on the first lap and held the lead throughout the 35-lap contest.

With five laps to go, Grand Island driver Dean Ward spun and hit the rail in the third turn causing a restart and closing the considerable lead Martin had gained over the 18-car field.

But Martin, of Council Bluffs, Ia., got a jump on the pack when the race restarted and roared away from the pack once again, coasting to the victory in the race involving the top drivers from Grand Island, Lincoln and Omaha.

"If the race had gone one more lap, though, I may not have finished at all," said Martin. "My car lost all its water on the white flag lap (last lap) and the temperature gauge went crazy. If I hadn't seen the white flag I would have had to pull off the track."

The water dumped by Martin's car played a role in determining the hotly contested runnerup spot in the $3,000 race.

Jerry Wancewicz of Omaha, had worked his way to second place behind Martin early in the race and even pressed for the lead until Martin pulled away for good on the 20th lap.

After holding off challenges from Kent Tucker and Chuck Kidwell, Wancewicz found himself in a battle with Omahan Bob Kosiski, considered one of the best drivers in the area.

Wancewicz kept Kosiski in third until the second to last lap when Martin's car dumped water on the track on the third turn. Wancewicz was heading for the water and slowed down in order to keep his car under control, and Kosiski slipped by on the inside to take second place.

"If I hadn't slowed down I would have gone right through the rail on the turn," said Wancewicz, who won the trophy dash and his heat race.

Kosiski started in the fourth row in the race and had been bumped all the way to the rear of the pack in the early going due to an accident. He worked his way up to third by the tenth lap passing Tucker, and trailed Wancewicz until the second to last lap.

"I saw that Jerry (Wancewicz) had moved up higher on the track when I closed in on him and I wasn't getting enough traction down low to pass him," said Kosiski. "Then when he slipped in the turn I was able to get by."

"I might have been able to catch Martin if I could have gotten by Wancewicz on the restart, or if I could have held my original position at the start," said Kosiski. "But I don't know if I could have passed him. Martin really drove a good race."

Tucker finished fourth in the race followed by Ron Tilley and Craig Lockhart, who also won the B feature.

Martin, who placed sixth in the first leg of the Challenge series at Grand Island, now leads the point standings in the series.

Bill Wrich, who won the race at Grand Island, finished seventh in Wednesday's race.

The series will conclude Aug. 11 at Omaha's Sunset Speedway.

Browns Feature Ripoff Artist Pruitt

By DAVE SITTLER

Greg Pruitt wants his football career to be one big ripoff after another.

Football jersey ripoff, that is. The tearaway kind, that can be ripped off a running back's back as he breaks out of the grasp of a defensive player.

When it comes to tearaway jerseys, Pruitt might be the greatest ripoff artist in the National Football League.

The former Oklahoma all-American, who now does his wardrobe destruction routine with the Cleveland Browns of the NFL, went through seven jerseys in last year's game against the Kansas City Chiefs.

"It was worth it," Cleveland equipment manager Chuck Cusick said of the seven ruined jerseys that cost the Browns $140.

"We buy aboug 10 dozen jerseys a year for Pruitt alone. A good indication of how the Browns are performing in a game is the number of jerseys Greg has ripped off."

In that Kansas City game, Pruitt rushed for 214 yards and scored three times. He also became the third man in Browns history to rush for more than 1,000 yards.

"The guy's unbelievable," Kansas City safety Mike Sensibaugh said after Pruitt's performance. "He reminds me of a deer, he's so quick. He plants that foot and suddenly cuts. I was lucky to get a hold of his jersey. That's all most guys get off him."

Pruitt will try to make shreds of his uniform and the Baltimore defense Saturday when the Browns and Colts meet in a 2:05 p.m. preseason exhibition game at Nebraska's Memorial Stadium.

Nebraska fans who watched the 5-10, 190-pound Pruitt perform at Oklahoma, had no doubts the former Sooner star would make it in the NFL despite his dimunitive stature.

Speaking of his size, Pruitt says, "a little guy has more incentive. He has to go harder all the time. It's developed my style of running, which is to keep moving.

"Sometimes when I'm following a big tackle or guard, the tacklers don't even see me," Pruitt continued. "I sort of hide behind them. It works the other way, too, of course. I have to be careful how I position myself so that I can see what's out in front."

Pruitt finished second to Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers in the Heisman Trophy voting in 1972 and joined Jim Brown and Leroy Kelly as the only Browns to crack the magic 1,000-yard barrier.

He has impressed coaches around the league since breaking in with the Browns in 1973.

"He strikes the same fear O.J. Simpson does," Kansas City coach Paul Wiggin said. "He has great balance."

Pruitt evidently will be spending many seasons in a Browns uniform. Cleveland announced Wednesday that Pruitt had signed a long-term contract with the club.

Browns owner Art Modell said the contract was "designed to have Pruitt complete his professional football career with the Browns."

In other news out of the Browns camp Wednesday, five players were released as coach Forrest Gregg cut his squad down to 80 players.

Released were veteran defensive back John Pitts of Arizona State and third year quarterback Will Cureton of East Texas State. Rookies Gene Swick, a quarterback from Toledo, East Texas guard Curtis Wester and Mississippi running back James Reed were also cut.

Cleveland also announced that they traded rookie defensive tackle Steve Iassidy, the club's seventh-round draft pick, to the Green Bay Packers for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Squads Count Exhibition Tilts

By KEN HAMBLETON

Former Cleveland Browns head coach Paul Brown used to say that exhibition games were worth as much as they counted towards the final season standings. Nothing.

But all that has changed now and the exhibition season is as important as the regular season. At least that's the way the Browns and Baltimore Colts are viewing Saturday's 2:05 p.m. exhibition game at Nebraska's Memorial Stadium.

Barry Jones, publicity director for the Colts, quoted head coach Ted Marchibroda, about what the second year Baltimore coach thought about exhibitions.

"The turning point for us had to be our preseason game with the Houston Oilers," said Marchibroda, last year's Coach of the Year. "It was a brutal, physical game, probably the most physical game we played all season, and we won. Before that I thought we were a .500 team, but we showed the ability to bounce back from adversity."

The Colts went on to improve from a 2-12 record in 1974 to a 10-4 season mark last year, losing the American Conference title game to Pittsburgh, the eventual Super Bowl champions, 28-10.

"Our season proved to us that we were a good football team last year and will be a contender this year," said Jones, who was in town Wednesday. "But this year we have to answer the question, 'Are the Colts for real?', from our first exhibition game throughout the season."

"Marchibroda told me that we have to win in the preseason in order to win during the regular season," said Jones. "And he doesn't need to sell me any tickets."

The Browns also have to establish themselves early this season in order to reverse the pattern set during the past two years when Cleveland turned in the two worst records in the history of the club.

"We have won more NFL games than any other team since we joined the league in 1950," said Nate Wallack, vice president and public relations director for the Browns. "And we have to be serious every time we step on the field if we hope to reestablish the tradition of winning."

"There was a definite change in our team the last seven games during the 1975 season," said Wallack. "And it showed when we won three of our last five games, beating Cincinnati, Kansas City and New Orleans."

The Browns are 9-4 against the Colts in regular season games dating back to 1947 and 2-2 in preseason games including a 37-3 win over Baltimore in 1974, the last time the teams met in an exhibition game.

"Forrest Gregg, (the Browns second-year head coach) will be wanting to look at a lot of veterans in the exhibition game with the Colts Saturday because we have some awfully good recruits."

Don Bryant, sports information director at Nebraska, said that there are several good seats still available for the game Saturday afternoon. Tickets may be purchased at any Brandeis store, the National Bank of Commerce and the NU Ticket Office, with special discounts for high school age fans and under.

Bryant also noted that last year, many fans waited until the day of the game to purchase tickets and had to wait in long lines at the ticket office. The Husker Athletic Department will receive a share of the receipts.

Nadia's Doll Loses Head

Bucharest (UPI) — Nadia Comaneci, gold medal gymnast and teen-aged Olympic darling, arrived home overwhelmed by crowds Tuesday but upset because the head fell off one of her dolls.

Thousands of Romanians were so eager to greet wunderkind Nadia, 14, and her seven teammates that they rushed onto the tarmac as soon as the plane landed at Otopeni airport and stormed the gangway.

Despite the boisterous reception, Nadia appeared upset when speaking with reporters in the airports lounge.

Asked what was wrong. She explained she was "a little upset because one of her dolls lost its head in the plane."

Tate Battles Stevenson In Semifinals

MONTREAL (UPI) — The United States' hopes to regain the Olympic heavyweight boxing championship rest in the fists of a ponderous man who drives a garbage truck for a living and wears a jacket that says, "I love America—big John Tate."

In a year when the Americans have matched their best Olympic boxing performance of modern times, a lot of attention is being focused on the 21-yearold Tate simply because the heavyweight class is the most glamorous.

Tate hopes to follow in the pattern of such former Olympic winners as Joe Frazier and George Foreman. Wednesday, he took another step in that direction when he decisioned Peter Hussing of West Germany.

The fight was close. But Tate, fighting with a one-inch cut over his left eye (suffered in an earlier fight) was impressive enough to cause Foreman, seated at ringside, to observe, "That man's gonna give the champ trouble."

The champ is Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba, and he is Tate's next opponent, Thursday night, in the semi-finals.

"Big John has to not just fight a skillful fight," Foreman said. "He's got to turn tough and crazy, and Stevenson won't be able to handle it."

Six other American boxers have advanced with Tate to tonight's semi-finals, and all seven are assured at least of bronze medals for getting this far.

That matches the best U.S. medal total in boxing in modern times, the seven, including Foreman's, won in 1968.

Leon Spinks mauled Ottomar Sachse of East Germany, scoring a unanimous decision despite some strange warnings from a Tunisian referee who, while waiting for the decision to be announced, yanked Spinks' red-and-white tam o'shanter from his head and threw it into his corner. Michael knocked down Poland's Pyszard Pasiewiz with a crunching right to the head in the second round and also won a unanimous decision.

Four other Americans—flyweight Leo Randolph of Tacoma, Wash., bantamweight Charles Mooney of Ft. Bragg, N.C., lightweight Howard Davis of Glen Cove, N.Y., and light welterweight Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md.—won their quarter-final matches Tuesday and also are in the semis.

While the boxers kept marching along, the U.S. track and field team kept right on stumbling. The Americans lost the 110 meter hurdles for the first time since 1928 when world record holder Guy Drut of France won in 13.30 seconds. Willie Davenport, the 33-year-old whiz who is competing in his fourth Olympics—and was the champion in 1968—finished third, and said, "I wanted the gold, but I gave it all I could with what I have."

Drut, the first native-born Frenchman to win a track and field gold medal since 1928, said he was not concerned about the pressure that had built up on him to win.

The decathlon, always one of the Olympics' most interesting events, begins Thursday. Also on the track schedule are finals in the long jump and 400 meters and trials in the 1,500 meters featuring world mile record holder John Walked of New Zealand who failed last week qualifying for the 800.

Earlier this week, the U.S. failed to win a medal in the 100-meter dash for the first time since 1928.

Davenport's medal was the only one the U.S. won on the track Wednesday.

Anders Garderud of Sweden lowered his own record in the 3,000-meter steeplechase to 8:08.02, Yuri Sedykh of the Soviet Union won the hammer throw with a heave of 254 feet 4 inches, and two East German women set Olympic records—Baerbel Eckert, 22.37 seconds in the 200-meter dash, and Rosemarie Ackerman, 6-4 in the high jump.

In other track action, Randy Williams, the 1972 gold medal winner, and Arnie Robinson qualified for the long jump final, and Francie Larrieu Lutz set an American record of 4:07.21 in advancing in the 1,500-meter qualifying heats.

A Cuban sugar-cane picker, Alberto Juantorena, and a Finnish policeman, Lasse Viren, also moved ahead in their bids for a little bit of Olympic history. Juantorena, already the winner of the 800 meters in world record time, coasted into the 400 final. No one ever has won both races in an Olympics. Viren qualifed for the 5,000-meter final in his effort to become the first man to win that race and the 10,000 meters in two successive Olympics. He won the 10,000 on Monday.

In boxing, Tate was worried about the cut over his eye and Rollie Schwartz, the U.S. team manager, said he was "in a lot of trouble."

Hussing kept punching at the spot until he reopened the wound in the second round, causing the referee to ask a ringside physician to look at it. The doctor permitted Tate to continue and he eventually knocked Hussing down in the third round.

"I thank the Lord he didn't stop it," Tate said. "I knew it was kind of close. Some people want to call it a big cut, but I like to think it's a scratch."

One American boxer was eliminated Wednesday, welterweight Clint Jackson, a 22-year-old deputy sheriff from Nashville, Tenn., losing a split decision to Pedro Gamarro of Venezuela, a three-time Central America champion.

In other developments:

— Six American freestyle wrestlers won their first two bouts including light heavyweight Ben Peterson of Comstock, Wis., a gold medal winner in 1972. Peterson needed a disputed takedown at the final buzzer to defeat a Bulgarian in his second match.

—The United States overcame a bad start to beat out West Germany for the silver medal in Tornado class yachting.

—The prime minister of Trinidad and Tobago, Eric Williams, announced in Port of Spain that 100-meter champion Hasely Crawford, his country's first Olympic champion, would receive the Trinity Cross, the nation's highest award.

—In Tucson, Ariz., the U.S. Gymnastics Federation announced that a controversial scheduled tour of South Africa by a team of American women gymnasts had been "postponed."

—Two runners, Willy Polleunis of Belgium and Klaus-Peter Hildebrand of West Germany, were disqualified from the 5,000 meters for illegally blocking their rivals on the last lap.

MONTREAL (AP) — The men's 400-meter dash and four other Olympic track and field finals are scheduled Thursday as ABC-TV's coverage of the Summer Games continues.

Alberto Juantorena, the husky Cuban who took the gold medal in the 800 meters, will be bidding for a double in the 400. But Americans Maxie Parks, Fred Newhouse and Herman Frazier have predicted they will shut him out.

Former Champ In Lead

By VIRGIL PARKER

Bellevue — Omaha's Tom Sieckmann, who won both the Nebraska Amateur match and medal play tournaments in 1974 but skipped the more prestigious medal event last year in favor of the national Trans-Miss, fired a 67 over the Capehart Course at Offutt Air Force Base here Wednesday to take a commanding first-round lead.

Sieckmann's five-under-par effort staked the Oklahoma State junior to a three-shot edge over ex-Nebraska basketball star Sam Martin.

The Pawnee City dentist's two-under 70 gave him a one-stroke edge over five others, a group which included defending champion Mike Klein of Scottsbluff and 1972 titlist Dan Bahensky of Lincoln.

Martin, a cool hand when on the hoop court for the Huskers, displayed the same skills on the links until the final two holes. He eagled the par five 12th and was four-under until finishing bogey-bogey on Nos. 17 and 18.

Sieckmann, who battled into the finals of the match play tournament earlier this summer before bowing to Omaha's Tom Olson, called his opening round "embarrassingly easy.

"I know it will get a lot tougher the last two days after the field is cut," Sieckmann noted, "but they had the tee markers so far up that the course — the toughest in the state under normal conditions — played like it was a 70 par."

Sieckmann pointed to the fact that he hit two five par greens with a driver and an eight-iron and a driver and a wedge and was putting for eagles.

"The other five pars played fairly honest," Sieckmann added, "but overall I was a little disappointed. This is supposed to be a championship tournament. If they were to keep the tees up like that all week it would turn into a putting contest."

Sieckmann recorded five birdies and was without a bogey.

"I hit 16 greens, so only was in danger of bogey twice," he recalled. "In each case I was able to get the ball within six feet and make the par putts."

Klein, who was a junior at Houston this year (they were third in the NCAA to winner Oklahoma State and runnerup BYU), called his round "routine."

"I was mainly concerned about ot getting a poor start. I played it a little safe. At least I'm in a challenging position at 71. That's better than getting reckless the first day and trying to fight back from a 76. This tournament is going to be won the last two days after they stretch out the course."

Like Sieckmann, Klein had five birdies — one on a 20-foot downhill putt when "I was just trying to get it close" — but slipped to four bogeys. Three times he missed the green in regulation and once suffered from a three-putt green.

Bahensky, a University of Nebraska law student, was also five under with an eagle and three birdies, but like Klein, lost most of his advantage with four bogeys.

"I could'nt buy a putt except for the 20-footer for the eagle on No. 17," Bahensky noted.

Bahensky drove the 318-yard hole with the aid of a trailing wind and canned the putt for the eagle.

Recently crowned Lincoln city champ Mike Hughett settled for a three-over 75, while state match play winner Olson slipped to a 77. Rennie Sasse, runner-up to Hughett for Lincoln city honors, also had his trouble and will have difficulty making the cut after an opening-round 79.

After the entire field of 150 plays the second 18 Thursday, the surviving top 54 golfers will complete the tourney with final rounds on Friday and Saturday.

Dean Ward's pit crew pushes his super stocker into the pit area after Ward won his heat race to make adjustments. But the adjustments didn't last, as Ward was forced to drop out of the feature race of the Tri-City Challenge Match Wednesday at Midwest Speedway. Bill Martin of Omaha won the 35-lap main event.

Martin Holds On For Challenge Win

By KEN HAMBLETON

One more lap and Bill Martin might have finished tenth instead of winning the Tri-City Challenge series race Wednesday night before 2,000 fans at Midwest Speedway.

Martin, who won last yar's Challenge series for super stock cars, jumped into the lead from his position in the front row on the first lap and held the lead throughout the 35-lap contest.

With five laps to go, Grand Island driver Dean Ward spun and hit the rail in the third turn causing a restart and closing the considerable lead Martin had gained over the 18-car field.

But Martin, of Council Bluffs, Ia., got a jump on the pack when the race restarted and roared away from the pack once again, coasting to the victory in the race involving the top drivers from Grand Island, Lincoln and Omaha.

"If the race had gone one more lap, though, I may not have finished at all," said Martin. "My car lost all its water on the white flag lap (last lap) and the temperature gauge went crazy. If I hadn't seen the white flag I would have had to pull off the track."

The water dumped by Martin's car played a role in determining the hotly contested runnerup spot in the $3,000 race.

Jerry Wancewicz of Omaha, had worked his way to second place behind Martin early in the race and even pressed for the lead until Martin pulled away for good on the 20th lap.

After holding off challenges from Kent Tucker and Chuck Kidwell, Wancewicz found himself in a battle with Omahan Bob Kosiski, considered one of the best drivers in the area.

Wancewicz kept Kosiski in third until the second to last lap when Martin's car dumped water on the track on the third turn. Wancewicz was heading for the water and slowed down in order to keep his car under control, and Kosiski slipped by on the inside to take second place.

"If I hadn't slowed down I would have gone right through the rail on the turn," said Wancewicz, who won the trophy dash and his heat race.

Kosiski started in the fourth row in the race and had been bumped all the way to the rear of the pack in the early going due to an accident. He worked his way up to third by the tenth lap passing Tucker, and trailed Wancewicz until the second to last lap.

"I saw that Jerry (Wancewicz) had moved up higher on the track when I closed in on him and I wasn't getting enough traction down low to pass him," said Kosiski. "Then when he slipped in the turn I was able to get by."

"I might have been able to catch Martin if I could have gotten by Wancewicz on the restart, or if I could have held my original position at the start," said Kosiski. "But I don't know if I could have passed him. Martin really drove a good race."

Tucker finished fourth in the race followed by Ron Tilley and Craig Lockhart, who also won the B feature.

Martin, who placed sixth in the first leg of the Challenge series at Grand Island, now leads the point standings in the series. Bill Wrich, who won the race at Grand Island, finished seventh in Wednesday's race.

The series will conclude Aug. 11 at Omaha's Sunset Speedway.

Oh well, you can't let the past bother you. On Thursday, I'm going to put my $2 win tickets on Grand Holme in the fifth and Oklahoma Warrior in the seventh. I've got to get a winner sometime.

Tate Battles Stevenson In Semifinals

MONTREAL (UPI) — The United States' hopes to regain the Olympic heavyweight boxing championship rest in the fists of a ponderous man who drives a garbage truck for a living and wears a jacket that says, "I love America—big John Tate."

In a year when the Americans have matched their best Olympic boxing performance of modern times, a lot of attention is being focused on the 21-yearold Tate simply because the heavyweight class is the most glamorous.

Tate hopes to follow in the pattern of such former Olympic winners as Joe Frazier and George Foreman. Wednesday, he took another step in that direction when he decisioned Peter Hussing of West Germany.

The fight was close. But Tate, fighting with a one-inch cut over his left eye (suffered in an earlier fight) was impressive enough to cause Foreman, seated at ringside, to observe, "That man's gonna give the champ trouble."

The champ is Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba, and he is Tate's next opponent, Thursday night, in the semi-finals.

"Big John has to not just fight a skillful fight," Foreman said. "He's got to turn tough and crazy, and Stevenson won't be able to handle it."

Six other American boxers have advanced with Tate to tonight's semi-finals, and all seven are assured at least of bronze medals for getting this far.

That matches the best U.S. medal total in boxing in modern times, the seven, including Foreman's, won in 1968.

Leon Spinks mauled Ottomar Sachse of East Germany, scoring a unanimous decision despite some strange warnings from a Tunisian referee who, while waiting for the decision to be announced, yanked Spinks' red-and-white tam o'shanter from his head and threw it into his corner. Michael knocked down Poland's Pyszard Pasiewiz with a crunching right to the head in the second round and also won a unanimous decision.

Four other Americans—flyweight Leo Randolph of Tacoma, Wash., bantamweight Charles Mooney of Ft. Bragg, N.C., lightweight Howard Davis of Glen Cove, N.Y., and light welterweight Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md.—won their quarter-final matches Tuesday and also are in the semis.

While the boxers kept marching along, the U.S. track and field team kept right on stumbling. The Americans lost the 110 meter hurdles for the first time since 1928 when world record holder Guy Drut of France won in 13.30 seconds. Willie Davenport, the 33-year-old whiz who is competing in his fourth Olympics—and was the champion in 1968—finished third, and said, "I wanted the gold, but I gave it all I could with what I have."

Drut, the first native-born Frenchman to win a track and field gold medal since 1928, said he was not concerned about the pressure that had built up on him to win.

The decathlon, always one of the Olympics' most interesting events, begins Thursday. Also on the track schedule are finals in the long jump and 400 meters and trials in the 1,500 meters featuring world mile record holder John Walked of New Zealand who failed last week qualifying for the 800.

Earlier this week, the U.S. failed to win a medal in the 100-meter dash for the first time since 1928.

Davenport's medal was the only one the U.S. won on the track Wednesday.

Anders Garderud of Sweden lowered his own record in the 3,000-meter steeplechase to 8:08.02, Yuri Sedykh of the Soviet Union won the hammer throw with a heave of 254 feet 4 inches, and two East German women set Olympic records—Baerbel Eckert, 22.37 seconds in the 200-meter dash, and Rosemarie Ackerman, 6-4 in the high jump.

In other track action, Randy Williams, the 1972 gold medal winner, and Arnie Robinson qualified for the long jump final, and Francie Larrieu Lutz set an American record of 4:07.21 in advancing in the 1,500-meter qualifying heats.

A Cuban sugar-cane picker, Alberto Juantorena, and a Finnish policeman, Lasse Viren, also moved ahead in their bids for a little bit of Olympic history. Juantorena, already the winner of the 800 meters in world record time, coasted into the 400 final. No one ever has won both races in an Olympics. Viren qualifed for the 5,000-meter final in his effort to become the first man to win that race and the 10,000 meters in two successive Olympics. He won the 10,000 on Monday.

In boxing, Tate was worried about the cut over his eye and Rollie Schwartz, the U.S. team manager, said he was "in a lot of trouble."

Hussing kept punching at the spot until he reopened the wound in the second round, causing the referee to ask a ringside physician to look at it. The doctor permitted Tate to continue and he eventually knocked Hussing down in the third round.

"I thank the Lord he didn't stop it," Tate said. "I knew it was kind of close. Some people want to call it a big cut, but I like to think it's a scratch."

One American boxer was eliminated Wednesday, welterweight Clint Jackson, a 22-year-old deputy sheriff from Nashville, Tenn., losing a split decision to Pedro Gamarro of Venezuela, a three-time Central America champion.

In other developments:

—Six American freestyle wrestlers won their first two bouts including light heavyweight Ben Peterson of Comstock, Wis., a gold medal winner in 1972. Peterson needed a disputed takedown at the final buzzer to defeat a Bulgarian in his second match.

—The United States overcame a bad start to beat out West Germany for the silver medal in Tornado class yachting.

—The prime minister of Trinidad and Tobago, Eric Williams, announced in Port of Spain that 100-meter champion Hasely Crawford, his country's first Olympic champion, would receive the Trinity Cross, the nation's highest award.

—In Tucson, Ariz., the U.S. Gymnastics Federation announced that a controversial scheduled tour of South Africa by a team of American women gymnasts had been "postponed."

—Two runners, Willy Polleunis of Belgium and Klaus-Peter Hildebrand of West Germany, were disqualified from the 5,000 meters for illegally blocking their rivals on the last lap.

More Track On Television

MONTREAL (AP) — The men's 400-meter dash and four other Olympic track and field finals are scheduled Thursday as ABC-TV's coverage of the Summer Games continues.

Alberto Juantorena, the husky Cuban who took the gold medal in the 800 meters, will be bidding for a double in the 400. But Americans Maxie Parks, Fred Newhouse and Herman Frazier have predicted they will shut him out.

The network will televise 3¾ hours of action, from 6:30 to 10 p.m. CDT, plus a 15-minute wrapup at 10:30 p.m.

In the final game, Falstaff pitcher Jim Gore got his team's only hit, stole second and advanced to third on a wild pitch before catcher Bryce Doebele hit a sacrifice fly to give Falstaff a 3-2 win over Racquet Lounge, which had 10 hits scattered throughout the game.

Doggett Knee Has Swelling

Crete — Tom Doggett, Lincoln Pius X's twice all-state running back, maintained hope to play in the Aug. 7 Shrine Bowl after seeing X-rays of his injured left knee Wednesday morning.

South Shrine coach John Faiman said "right now, I'd say it's a 75% chance he won't play and a 25% chance that he will."

X-rays showed Doggett's knee will not require surgery. "They took the swelling out," Faiman said. "We're just going to give it hot and cold treatments here, see if the swelling stays down and hope for the best."

Morning Briefing

76ers Sign Jones

The Philadelphia 76ers, an NBA team with a wealth of centers, announced the signing of center Caldwell Jones, formerly of the now-defunct ABA, to a multi-year contract.

The 6-11 Jones played for San Diego, Kentucky and St. Louis in his three years with the ABA. He was not signed under the ABA dispersal draft.

Other Basketball

Coppin State's NAIA basketball champions have been cleared of charges tht the team included three ineligible players when it won the title.

Olympics

Hasely Crawford of Trinidad and winner of the 100 meter dash at the Olympics, will be awarded the Trinity Cross, his nation's highest award.

Police have been banned from Games sites unless they are on security duties there. The decision was taken after 692 policemen were found to have used their security passes to see a boxing program.

Police records show 12 bomb scares were recorded during the first week of the Olympics and seven death threats received, including threats against Queen Elizabeth and Caroline Kennedy.

Other Sports

Veteran Washington Redskins cornerback Mike Bass, a 10-year NFL veteran with a playing career that includes the last 104 games dating back to 1969, announced his retirement because of a continuing neck injury.

Ben Crenshaw goes into the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Classic on top of the golf world — a position that has been predicted for him since he entered pro golf. Crenshaw leads the money-winning list.

Alexander Metreveli beat Antonio Munoz of Spain, 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, in European Zone Group A Davis Cup semifinals to give the Soviet Union a 3-1 lead in matches.

South Africa was expelled from international swimming, the third blow it has suffered in world sports in two weeks. The International Amateur Swimming Federation (FINA) ousted South Africa on grounds of racial discrimination in sports. The track and field and soccer federations have already removed South Africa from their ranks.

Rhode Island Gov. Philip W. Noel said he refused to convene the state legislature to bail out failing Lincoln Downs because sinking more state money into the thoroughbred racetrack would be a poor investment.

Nevele Thunder, last year's champion 2-year-olds, drew the inside post position for the running of the Yonkers Trot, the first leg of the Triple Crown for 3-year-old trotters.

Doggett Knee Has Swelling

Crete — Tom Doggett, Lincoln Pius X's twice all-state running back, maintained hope to play in the Aug. 7 Shrine Bowl after seeing X-rays of his injured left knee Wednesday morning.

South Shrine coach John Faiman said "right now, I'd say it's a 75% chance he won't play and a 25% chance that he will."

X-rays showed Doggett's knee will not require surgery. "They took the swelling out," Faiman said. "We're just going to give it hot and cold treatments here, see if the swelling stays down and hope for the best."

It's All Outdoors

Remember When . . .?

Remember when it used to rain? You remember, the old days when it always rained on weekends and ruined family outings, like camping, beachcombing or fishing.

Those were the days, weren't they? I can recall fondly (It always looks funnier several years later) when the family would pack up the tent, cooler, camp stove and all the gear and head for the campgrounds.

We'd always take a chance on the weather reports of 30% chance of rain. And we'd always lose. It rained every time we took the tent near the car.

Sometimes, when the forecast called for less than a 10 per cent chance for rain, the cloudburst would wait until we had the tent almost up. Or we'd be right in the middle of the lake. Or the stakes would be halfway done and we'd have to eat them soggy and half raw.

The rains we'd stick out were always the bruisers. They'd be nice, steady rains, all day long. We'd look out the tent window and say, "Looks like it's breaking up in the west."

About that time the winds would come up. The biggest, ugliest tornado clouds in the entire world would come zipping over the one tree which blocked your view of the northwest or southeast or any other direction but the one which showed signs of blue sky.

The rain would start down in buckets. Invariably, the only spot you have left to pitch your tent would be in a small waterway.

Works Every Time

And for some reason, which taxes your claim to intelligence, the door opening just happens to be the path the water decides to take. Sleeping bags are great spounges. And you never knew rain water could wash so much dirt into a tent in the form of mud.

About that time the tent blows over and you look around in total amazement to find out everyone else left the campground hours ago. It used to happen every time.

Those were the good old days, when it rained.

Fond memories were enlightened last week when it rained. It actually rained. The family started jumping up and down, waiting to hear where it was we were going camping.

We almost opted to put the tent up in the backyard so we wouldn't miss any of the showers which brought a ghost of green color back into our parched lawn. It was a nice feeling.

We immediately ran to our storage area and began shuffling camping gear to throw out in the rain. Some of the newer stuff hadn't seen moisture before so it was rated priority.

We took the camp stove off the shelf. It didn't even have a spot of rust like the old one we retired. It was then a comforting rust color. It used to be green.

But before we could throw out the new green stove, or the sleeping bags. Before we could even get the tent out of its stuff bag, the rain stopped. That really hurt. Our camping trip was destroyed. The grass turned brown again.

We went back in the house and pulled out the photo album. The wife looked at one of the old camp shots and fondly sighed, "Remember when it used to rain?"

Kuhn Sees New Rules

Washington (UPI) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn predicted Wednesday the possibility of new rules being formulated to crack down fights such as that which erupted between the New York Yankees and the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night, causing slugger Reggie Jackson to be sidelined for several days, and also forecast two new expansion teams for the National League.

Asked about the incident in a reappearance before a special House Committee on Professional Sports, Kuhn said he had not yet gotten the full facts.

But he said he wanted "to make it clear I don't condone intentional violence in baseball and if, as it is possible, we need to strengthen the rules, that will be done."

He also forecast an expansion of the National League to match the new 14-team format of the American League.

Seward edged Colonel Sanders, 6-5, after Sam's and Ace TV squared off in a slug-fest. Sam's Terry Stunden led his team with five hits in a slug-fest.

Briton Upsets Tanner

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Unseeded Buster Mottram of Great Britain scored a hard-fought 7-5, 7-6 upset victory over No. 5 seed Roscoe Tanner Wednesday night in the $125,000 Louisville International Tennis Classic.

In another evening singles match, 13th-seeded Wotjek Fiback of Poland defeated Zeliko Franulovic 6-3, 6-1.

Earlier, top-seeded Guillermo Vilas downed unseeded Eric van Dillen 6-4, 6-4.

Vilas' victory was the second in this year's tournament toward his third straight title. He downed John James of Australia 6-4, 6-4 in the first round.

Recovering from a wrist injury, Vilas said after Wednesday's match the heat was as much a factor in his performance as his injury.

"It is very difficult to play in this heat," he said. Van Dillen "was playing some games good and some games he was a little tired.

"I don't know, but something was happening to him. He was hitting good shots and he was stopping," Vilas said.

In other action involving seeded players:

No. 3 Raul Ramirez of Mexico downed Alvin Gardiner of Australia 6-2, 6-2; No. 6 Jaime Fillol of Chile beat Bill Scanlon 6-3, 3-6, 6-1; No. 7 Brian Gottfried defeated Henry Bunif 3-6, 6-4, 6-2; No. 8 Stan Smith defeated John Bartlett of Australia 7-6, 6-4, and No. 10 Ross Case beat Byron Bertram of South Africa 7-6, 7-6.

Briton Upsets Tanner

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Unseeded Buster Mottram of Great Britain scored a hard-fought 7-5, 7-6 upset victory over No. 5 seed Roscoe Tanner Wednesday night in the $125,000 Louisville International Tennis Classic.

In another evening singles match, 13th-seeded Wotjek Fiback of Poland defeated Zeliko Franulovic 6-3, 6-1.

Earlier, top-seeded Guillermo Vilas downed unseeded Eric van Dillen 6-4, 6-4.

Vilas' victory was the second in this year's tournament toward his third straight title. He downed John James of Australia 6-4, 6-4 in the first round.

Recovering from a wrist injury, Vilas said after Wednesday's match the heat was as much a factor in his performance as his injury.

"It is very difficult to play in this heat," he said. Van Dillen "was playing some games good and some games he was a little tired.

"I don't know, but something was happening to him. He was hitting good shots and he was stopping," Vilas said.

NSAA Grants Eligibility

By The Associated Press

Omaha public school students transferred because of desegregation can retain their eligibility for sports, the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) announced Wednesday.

"If such transfer is made specifically to achieve racial balance within the policy established by the Omaha public schools," said NSAA Executive Secretary James Riley, "the student would be eligible immediately to compete in all interschool activities, provided he or she is eligible in all other respects."

Omaha school officials and representatives of the district's high schools met recently with Riley and reviewed NSAA transfer rules, along with the desegregation busing plans for Omaha.

In most circumstances, under NSAA rules a student transferring from one school to another without a residence change by the parents would be ineligible for sports for 90 school days.

The Omaha desegregation plan, which begins with this autumn's school term, is required by a federal order

The Omaha school system also has approved certain "special need transfers"

Riley said such cases "will be studied separately, and a hardship case for each may be submitted to the NSAA Board of Control for a ruling to possibly reinstate the eligibility of students for activities participation."

NSAA Grants Eligibility

By The Associated Press

Omaha public school students transferred because of desegregation can retain their eligibility for sports, the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) announced Wednesday.

"If such transfer is made specifically to achieve racial balance within the policy established by the Omaha public schools," said NSAA Executive Secretary James Riley, "the student would be eligible immediately to compete in all interschool activities, provided he or she is eligible in all other respects."

Omaha school officials and representatives of the district's high schools met recently with Riley and reviewed NSAA transfer rules, along with the desegregation busing plans for Omaha.

In most circumstances, under NSAA rules a student transferring from one school to another without a residence change by the parents would be ineligible for sports for 90 school days.

The Omaha desegregation plan, which begins with this autumn's school term, is required by a federal order.

The Omaha school system also has approved certain "special need transfers."

Riley said such cases "will be studied separately, and a hardship case for each may be submitted to the NSAA Board of Control for a ruling to possibly reinstate the eligibility of students for activities participation."

Selling Spurt Hits Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — A spurt of selling in semiconductor issues helped keep the stock market on the defensive Wednesday Prices finished with their second broad decline in a row

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 7 38 on Tuesday, lost another 2.80 to 981 33

The average was off more than 6 points at mid-day before making a gradual recovery in bargain hunting toward the close

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues

Big Board volume edged up to an even 16 million shares from 15 58 million Tuesday.

The often-volatile semiconductor group hit some rocky going following the announcement from National Semiconductor late Tuesday that it had run into some manufacturing problems with its semiconductor components for digital watches

National's stock fell more than 5 points in heavy trading after a delayed opening

Such other stocks in the group as Texas Instruments, Fairchild Camera and Raytheon all lost more than a point.

Brokers said the declines in the semiconductor sector, with its glamorous image among traders, exerted a dampening influence on the market as a whole

They said investors still appeared uneasy over Tuesday's word that the Federal Reserve was setting more stringent goals for its monetary policy

And analysts also cited disappointment at the market's lack of response either to prime rate cuts by a few major banks this week or to the hefty dividend increase announced Tuesday by International Business Machines

Hughes Tool dropped a fraction on lower quarterly earnings.

Lee Buys Kansas City, Kan., Paper

The Lee organization, which has diversified activities in broadcast, film production and printing plate manufacturing, also publishes newspapers in 14 cities This purchase marks its first venture into Kansas and into one of the top metropolitan markets

The Kansan has a daily circulation of 25,611 Monday through Friday and 26,483 on Sunday Kansas City, Kan , is located along the Missouri River across from Kansas City, Mo

"We're delighted to have an opportunity to serve part of the Kansas City metropolitan market," said Schermer

Wayne Schile has been appointed publisher of The Kansan effective Aug 1, 1976 Schile was formerly general manager of The Journal-Times, Racine, Wis , and "brings a strong background of experience in community newspapering to his new responsibility," said Schermer

Women's Job Division Gets Funds

The Women's Employment Opportunities Division of the Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women has received $43,872 in continuation funding for the next fiscal year, according to Commission Chairperson Maxine Burnett Moul of Syracuse

WEOD was created in February and funded until June by the State Labor Department's Comprehensive Employment Training Act Mrs Moul said that allowed the WEOD staff to work toward improving women's job opportunities

Those have been expanded in the last six months, as WEOD worked closely with women, employers, union leaders, state agency heads and other government officials, she said

The division is also preparing a profile of women's status in the Nebraska labor market, scheduled for early fall release

Mrs Moul said a number of women have been helped individually and via workshops on resume writing, upward mobility, career planning, nontraditional job opportunities and legal rights

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Hawaii — The rummy maitai was invented by Trader Vic of San Francisco "Maitai" means "good" in Tahitian. And the maitai has certainly been good for the hotel bars here, for the lowest it goes for is $2 50 a pop

The Trader invented it for the Royal Hawaiian at Waikiki, along with a half dozen other exotic drinks — the Fogcutter, the Missionary's Downfall, etc.

The Maitai has been the best-seller.

It's a fruity thing, mainly lemon juice, in a double old-fashioned glass

It is spiked with two jiggers of light rum and a dark Jamaica floated on top

The glass is packed with crushed ice. This makes the maitai profitable

In the glass they stick a wedge of pineapple and a stick of sugar cane. Both are inexpensive and let the drinker know he is in Hawaii Some bartenders put a tiny paper Japanese parasol over all And all drop a little vanda orchid on top

It's a pretty presentation It tastes rummy.

☆ ☆ ☆

These are rich days in the sugar islands. The sun is golden. The trade wind blows like money from home. The sea is blue as a Swiss bank note.

At the luxurious Mauna Kea, Laurance Rockefeller's posh hotel on the Big Island, the rooms cost more than double what they did when it opened

They have added a whole new wing to take care of the rush.

Rockefeller sunk a bundle in the place. At the opening, we figured the place cost $100,000 per room. You have to be a Rockefeller to stand that nudge.

The story I like best is that a friend said to Rockefeller, "A hundred thousand dollars a room! Why Laurance, it will take you a hundred years to get that back."

Rockefeller said: "I can wait."

☆ ☆ ☆

The Big Island is full of new plans and developments. This is the home of the Parker Ranch, the biggest cattle ranch in America. (It just nudges out the King Ranch in south Texas)

A lot of Parker Ranch land is involved in the great tourist development. And the paniola, the Hawaiian cowboy, may have to trade in his horse for a ukulele Auwe'

On the Kona coast, where the early Hawaiians threw Captain Cook up for grabs, the rich Bishop Estate will put together $50 million more of Paradise for the mainland tourists

☆ ☆ ☆

The cost of getting here is less each year "Air fares keep going down," said an island hotel man "But the cost of staying here gets higher."

What fills the island hotels is the charter tour groups

"They come in at 200 a jet plane," he said. "The price — say $359 for transportation and a week in the islands. A half a dozen plane loads and you fill your hotels "

Once arrived, the malihini mainlander puts his nose into a maitai. It's expensive, Claude, but you don't come to Hawaii to drink the common martini.

☆ ☆ ☆

For swingers there are other exotic drinks. (One served in a coconut shell costs $5. But they let you take the shell home with you.)

I don't know how the rest of Hawaii got to use the name "maitai." (In New Orleans, the Fairmont owns "Sazerac " Other hotels make it. But they have to figure out their own names)

When you call Trader Vic's in San Francisco for the recipe, they get edgy and tell you it's a secret formula.

However, you can go to a store and buy Trader Vic's Maitai Mix and Trader Vic's Maitai Rum. Ingredients are on the bottles. Mix your own. Put $2.50 in the piggy bank.

Selling Spurt Hits Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — A spurt of selling in semiconductor issues helped keep the stock market on the defensive Wednesday. Prices finished with their second broad decline in a row.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 7.38 on Tuesday, lost another 2.80 to 981.33.

The average was off more than 6 points at mid-day before making a gradual recovery in bargain hunting toward the close.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume edged up to an even 16 million shares from 15.58 million Tuesday.

The often-volatile semiconductor group hit some rocky going following the announcement from National Semiconductor late Tuesday that it had run into some manufacturing problems with its semiconductor components for digital watches.

National's stock fell more than 5 points in heavy trading after a delayed opening.

Such other stocks in the group as Texas Instruments, Fairchild Camera and Raytheon all lost more than a point.

Brokers said the declines in the semiconductor sector, with its glamorous image among traders, exerted a dampening influence on the market as a whole.

They said investors still appeared uneasy over Tuesday's word that the Federal Reserve was setting more stringent goals for its monetary policy.

And analysts also cited disappointment at the market's lack of response either to prime rate cuts by a few major banks this week or to the hefty dividend increase announced Tuesday by International Business Machines.

Hughes Tool dropped a fraction on lower quarterly earnings.

Lee Buys Kansas City, Kan., Paper

The purchase of The Kansas City Kansan by Lee Enterprises, Inc., from Stauffer Publications, Inc. was jointly announced Wednesday by the presidents of both corporations.

Stanley Stauffer, president of Stauffer Publications, and Lloyd G. Schermer, president of Lee Enterprises, said the sale will become effective on Aug. 1, 1976.

The Lee organization, which has diversified activities in broadcast, film production and printing plate manufacturing, also publishes newspapers in 14 cities. This purchase marks its first venture into Kansas and into one of the top metropolitan markets.

The Kansan has a daily circulation of 25,611 Monday through Friday and 26,483 on Sunday. Kansas City, Kan., is located along the Missouri River across from Kansas City, Mo.

"We're delighted to have an opportunity to serve part of the Kansas City metropolitan market," said Schermer.

Wayne Schile has been appointed publisher of The Kansan effective Aug. 1, 1976. Schile was formerly general manager of The Journal-Times, Racine, Wis., and "brings a strong background of experience in community newspapering to his new responsibility," said Schermer.

Women's Job Division Gets Funds

The Women's Employment Opportunities Division of the Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women has received $43,872 in continuation funding for the next fiscal year, according to Commission Chairperson Maxine Burnett Moul of Syracuse.

WEOD was created in February and funded until June by the State Labor Department's Comprehensive Employment Training Act. Mrs. Moul said that allowed the WEOD staff to work toward improving women's job opportunities.

Those have been expanded in the last six months, as WEOD worked closely with women, employers, union leaders, state agency heads and other government officials, she said.

The division is also preparing a profile of women's status in the Nebraska labor market, scheduled for early fall release.

Mrs. Moul said a number of women have been helped individually and via workshops on resume writing, upward mobility, career planning, nontraditional job opportunities and legal rights.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Hawaii — The rummy maitai was invented by Trader Vic of San Francisco. "Maitai" means "good" in Tahitian. And the maitai has certainly been good for the hotel bars here, for the lowest it goes for is $2.50 a pop.

The Trader invented it for the Royal Hawaiian at Waikiki, along with a half dozen other exotic drinks — the Fogcutter, the Missionary's Downfall, etc.

The Maitai has been the best-seller.

It's a fruity thing, mainly lemon juice, in a double old-fashioned glass.

It is spiked with two jiggers of light rum and a dark Jamaica floated on top.

The glass is packed with crushed ice. This makes the maitai profitable.

In the glass they stick a wedge of pineapple and a stick of sugar cane. Both are inexpensive and let the drinker know he is in Hawaii. Some bartenders put a tiny paper Japanese parasol over all. And all drop a little vanda orchid on top.

It's a pretty presentation. It tastes rummy.

☆ ☆ ☆

These are rich days in the sugar islands. The sun is golden. The trade wind blows like money from home. The sea is blue as a Swiss bank note.

At the luxurious Mauna Kea, Laurance Rockefeller's posh hotel on the Big Island, the rooms cost more than double what they did when it opened.

They have added a whole new wing to take care of the rush.

Rockefeller sunk a bundle in the place. At the opening, we figured the place cost $100,000 per room. You have to be a Rockefeller to stand that nudge.

The story I like best is that a friend said to Rockefeller, "A hundred thousand dollars a room! Why Laurance, it will take you a hundred years to get that back."

Rockefeller said: "I can wait."

☆ ☆ ☆

The Big Island is full of new plans and developments. This is the home of the Parker Ranch, the biggest cattle ranch in America. (It just nudges out the King Ranch in south Texas.)

A lot of Parker Ranch land is involved in the great tourist development. And the paniola, the Hawaiian cowboy, may have to trade in his horse for a ukulele. Auwe!

On the Kona coast, where the early Hawaiians threw Captain Cook up for grabs, the rich Bishop Estate will put together $50 million more of Paradise for the mainland tourists.

☆ ☆ ☆

The cost of getting here is less each year. "Air fares keep going down," said an island hotel man. "But the cost of staying here gets higher."

What fills the island hotels is the charter tour groups.

"They come in at 200 a jet plane," he said. "The price — say $359 for transportation and a week in the islands. A half a dozen plane loads and you fill your hotels."

Once arrived, the malihini mainlander puts his nose into a maitai. It's expensive, Claude, but you don't come to Hawaii to drink the common martini.

☆ ☆ ☆

For swingers there are other exotic drinks. (One served in a coconut shell costs $5. But they let you take the shell home with you.)

I don't know how the rest of Hawaii got to use the name "maitai." (In New Orleans, the Fairmont owns "Sazerac." Other hotels make it. But they have to figure out their own names.)

When you call Trader Vic's in San Francisco for the recipe, they get edgy and tell you it's a secret formula.

However, you can go to a store and buy Trader Vic's Maitai Mix and Trader Vic's Maitai Rum. Ingredients are on the bottles. Mix your own. Put $2.50 in the piggy bank.

Life After 40:

Genealogy Project Enjoyable

By JOANNE FARRIS

A READER WRITES: My daughter has taken on a Bicentennial project which will probably take her years to complete. She is doing a genealogy of my family. I have my father's old family Bible, and she decided someone should trace the family line.

Now that she's gotten started on that, she sits me down every week or two for an hour or so and asks me questions about my early life, courting my wife, about the mode of life, and so on. She puts it all down on tape. She says it's the first chapter for a history of the family.

I've had a pretty nice time with the reminiscing myself, so I wrote my brother about it, and now he wants her to come out and interview him, and she says she's going to do it. I feel pretty good that someone is doing this for my family.

COMMENT: Don't forget to show your daughter any scrapbooks, diaries, letters, old legal documents, and old pictures you have around. These are basic ingredients of a good family history, too.

The Smithsonian Institution sponsored a recent three-day seminar called "Kin and Communities," which director Margaret Mead said could inspire families to write their histories as a way of anchoring them to the past and would be interesting to them in the future.

Dr. Murray Bowen, a psychiatrist who took part in the seminar, has noted that in five generations each person is a mix of 64 families, and in 10 generations of 1,024. In 15 years of research he has tracked down 20 of the families in his past. One trail took him to Key West, Fla., where he was following the life of an uncle, John, whose branch of the family had died out in 1930. Bowen found a woman who remembered that his Uncle John had been a bird fancier and had collected rare birds and left his collection to the Smithsonian.

Dr. Bowen called his mother, who is 89, and asked her why she had not told him that Uncle John was an ornithologist.

"Why didn't you ask me?" his mother replied. "If you had asked, I would have told you."

Your daughter is asking. It doesn't matter whether the story is dramatic or simple, successful or sad. What matters is that she is discovering it. Over time things happened in your family; they happen in every family, of course, that is life. Finding out what did occur and getting a record of it is rewarding and exciting.

Old people have memories which are priceless legacies to the young and to those not yet born — if they can be recorded. Tape-recorded interviews are source materials for the new generation of historians. Members of the staffs of the presidential libraries are travelling all over the country interviewing persons who knew presidents, getting their memories on tape, filling in the human interest side of the men who have led us from the Oval Office.

Local historical societies are doing community-wide what your daughter is doing for your family. If she has not done so, she might enjoy and benefit from membership in such a society. Most state associations have developed sections on local history.

The public library in Fort Wayne, Ind., has one of the best genealogy departments in the country, including British records going back to the 12th Century. The Newberry Library in Chicago is another good source of information and assistance.

1 YEAR OLD
YES
Wally's Used Cars
"The little lot that deals a lot"
IS 1 YEAR OLD

One year ago we started Wally's Used Cars, I should say re-started because Wally's Used Cars is a name known in Lincoln for over 30 years but went out of business in 1965 with the death of Wally Smith (my father). 10 years later in 1975 we opened under the same name with only 4 cars, now we have 70 cars. Yes, we have grown at a rapid pace. Why so fast? Because our cars, prices & deals have been right. In the past year we have sold over 300 cars because the cars, prices & deals were right.

WE'RE PROUD OF OUR PAST
SURE OF OUR FUTURE

1 YEAR OLD
YES
Wally's Used Cars
IS 1 YEAR OLD

One year ago we started Wally's Used Cars, I should say re-started because Wally's Used Cars is a name known in Lincoln for over 30 years but went out of business in 1965 with the death of Wally Smith (my father). 10 years later in 1975 we opened under the same name with only 4 cars, now we have 70 cars. Yes, we have grown at a rapid pace. Why so fast? Because our cars, prices & deals have been right. In the past year we have sold over 300 cars because the cars, prices & deals were right.

WE'RE PROUD

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, July 29, 1976

Credo of Virgo: "If something or someone bothers you, get away. Don't hang around until your nerves are frayed and your appetite ruined. Take care, be aware of nutrition and take what orthodoxy says against vitamins with a grain of salt. Analyze. Give your best and insist on quality service in return. If something, someone, a technique or a method can be of real aid — run, don't walk to get there, to destination. You are important and your well-being is paramount, not what others think or say or do. You. It is you, your health, your ability to live and enjoy life. Remember it. That is my credo and so be it." Comment: That is Virgo speaking. What do you say?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Moderate pace now serves best interests. Taurus, Libra figure in picture. Emphasis on plans which encompass family, home, security — and the luxuries of life. Add up assets, deficits. Get rid of wasteful procedures.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Look behind the scenes. Means don't take too much on face value. Give full play to creative urge. You have right to express feelings. Know it and imprint your own style. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Contracts, legal documents relating to property, real estate could be spotlighted. Older individual will lend benefit of experience. Practical methods should dominate. Take nothing for granted. Capricorn could be involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You complete project, task with aid of one familiar with ins-outs .... contacts are made which help remove red tape. Journey, communication figure in picture. Your response to message determines future course.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New approach to finances would be constructive. Emphasis also on speculation, change, romantic involvement. You confront real issues: you learn what you need as contrasted to desire. You get to heart of matters. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are able to get assurances in writing. What had been a promise of greater security ... can become a legal commitment. Know it and do something about it. Good intentions are fine — but protecting yourself in a realistic manner is real, mature, constructive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Diversify. Be versatile. Make inquiries. The more you ask, the more likely that answers will be received. Socialize. Diet becomes more important than in recent past. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Active associate presents idea which gets you to story behind the story.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Friendship is fine, but being self-reliant now is essential. Know it and act accordingly. Review, revise, tear down and rebuild. Money promises could result in rubber checks. Be discerning. Don't demand more than you know can be delivered. You'll understand!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have insights, "psychic impressions." The future presents an outline. You need not be in dark. It is a matter of seeing — or refusing to see. Key is to analyze, piece together clues. Do some private detective work. It could pay dividends!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What might seem an interminable delay is merely an "emotional breather." One who opposed you is seeking face-saving device. Know it and do something about it. Be diplomatic. Money difference will be settled — in your favor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Best laid plans ... have alternatives. Leave options for yourself. Seek information which is not released through ordinary channels. Pisces, Virgo could be in picture. A friend who is extravagant comes into picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Basic realities come into focus. Legal rights, permissions are accented. Marital status is also highlighted. You have better communication with one in authority. Your own unique abilities are appreciated, utilized.

IF JULY 29th IS YOUR BRITHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher; you have an affinity with young persons and you are an innovator. Leo, Cancer and Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. December could be your most significant month of 1976, a year featuring involvement, change, outlet for creative capabilities. If single, you could marry, if married, an addition to family might be indicated.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
